HONG KONG (Reuters) — North Viet Nam said three U.S. and South Vietnamese warships shelled a North Vietnamese village Wednesday morning but fled when fired on by a North Vietnamese army unit.

The North Vietnamese village Wednesday shelled a North Vietnamese village Wednesday morning but fled when fired on by a North Vietnamese army unit.

International Control Commission described the shelling as the second such incident in three days.

New Split Seen On Decision By Indonesia

JAKARTA (AP)—China and the Soviet Union made Indonesia a diplomatic battleground Wednesday. The Chinese backed Indonesia's decision to withdraw from the United Nations and the Russians opposed it.

Chinese Ambassador Yao Chang-ming called twice on Foreign Minister Subandrio to communicate Peking's backing.

Soviet Ambassador N. A. Mikhalov got to Subandrio first. He called Tuesday night and urged Indonesia to remain in the United Nations, reliable diplomatic sources said.

Afro-Asians Send Plea

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Indonesian Ambassador Lambertus Palar left for Jakarta Wednesday night bearing with him an urgent appeal by 11 Afro-Asian nations that his government reconsider its decision to withdraw from the United Nations.

U.K. Crew Protests Indonesian Route

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The crew of a British tanker chartered to an American firm has protested orders to transport oil between Indonesian ports in Sumatra. It was disclosed Wednesday.

G. W. Shaw, radio officer of the 17,210-ton Caltex London, told reporters:

"We feel it is not right for British subjects to trade with a country that is aggressive toward a Commonwealth nation."

Frozen Man Found On Calgary Rink

CALGARY (CP) — A troublesome stove may have saved the life of a Calgary man who became frozen to the surface of a skating rink.

Thomas Anderson, 44, caretaker at the Richmond community rink, was flooding the rink with a hose Monday night when he slipped and fell.

Mr. Anderson hurt himself and could not get up. The hose spread water around him and his clothing quickly froze in the 28-degree-below-zero weather.

His female cocker spaniel, Goldie, stayed beside him, and her paws froze to the ice.

About an hour later, J. T.

Humphries, vice-president of the community centre, arrived to check a troublesome stove in the centre and found Mr. Anderson.

He called the fire department and helped free Mr. Anderson and the dog. Mr. Anderson was treated for frostbite and later released from hospital. He was resting in bed Wednesday night.

Goldie had icicles on her paws, but they were not frozen. Mrs. Anderson said her husband hurt his hip when he fell.

"He tried to get up but couldn't. Then he got tired and sleepy. He said after a while he just didn't care. Goldie stayed beside him and licked his face."

Rain Lull Checks California Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The danger of new damage to north-west California's flood-ravaged Eel River Valley appeared over Wednesday with a break in the West Coast's parade of winter storms.

The Eel, swollen by a driving rainstorm drenching most of Northern California Tuesday, crested four feet below a predicted damaging height.

About 500 persons evacuated Tuesday night—200 by helicopter—hoped to return to their homes by Wednesday night in low-lying Fernbridge and Starvation Flat.

Both the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific rail lines across the Sierra Nevada were blocked Wednesday by earth slides and washouts.

The Southern Pacific's west-bound City of San Francisco was held at Sparks, Nev., and its passengers transferred to buses.

Snow on Donner Summit forced periodic closing of Interstate 80, major highway route crossing the Sierra.

Colder temperatures and slackened rain checked the threat of rising rivers all along California's north coast, from San Francisco to the Oregon border.

The Russian River crested at 39 feet at Guerneville in the resort area 70 miles north of San Francisco, 10 feet over flood stage. Forecasters said the Russian would recede slowly today.

The Red Cross reported it was sheltering 30 Russian River refugees at Guerneville and 40 more at Geyersville Wednesday night.

In the Eel River region, most of the 500 evacuees stayed with relatives and friends. But the Red Cross sheltered 77 others. The storm front, one of a steady series produced by a low pressure centre anchored off the Washington State coast, moved southward toward Los Angeles.

Answer to Critics

'Come and See' Tshombe Urges

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Premier Moise Tshombe has challenged his critics among Africa's leaders to come to the Congo and "listen to the tales of massacres and tortures" committed by Communist-backed rebel forces.

Tshombe singled out by name Wednesday four chiefs of state who have denounced him and the United States and Belgium for the rescue mission which liberated hundreds of white hostages last November. They were President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, President Modibo Keita of Mali and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

"I invite Ben Bella, Nkrumah, Keita, Nasser and others to come to Stanleyville to meet me there... and see what I have seen," he said.

BRIEF VISIT
Tshombe returned Tuesday night from a brief visit to Stanleyville, his first since the former "capital" of the Congolese rebels was recaptured two months ago.

He said his visit had convinced him there was only one solution to the Congo's problems: "the complete liberation of all territories from the rebels."

WITH WHOM?
"But negotiate with whom? With those whom the Belgian foreign minister compares with Hitler, so big was their ignominy?" he asked.

The premier did not explain why he cut short his visit to Stanleyville. He spent only about 2½ hours there before flying back to Leopoldville. Sources said it was to allow him to prepare for his visit to Brussels for talks with Belgian officials on important political and economic matters.

ALLIES
Paris (UPI)—North Atlantic allies are reported to have made headway toward a common policy aimed at countering Communist penetration in the Congo.

They did so at a 3½ hour meeting of the NATO permanent council attended by W. Averell Harriman, U.S. under-secretary of state for political affairs, Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, Portuguese Foreign Minister Antonio Franco Nogueira, French Foreign Affairs State Secretary Michel Habib-Delencle and Lord Watson, British parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs.

NATO sources said no decisions were reached and none had been expected. But they said there appeared to be agreement on the general line to be followed, although much additional discussion of details would be needed.

Tarnished Image

FEW NATIONAL LEADERS have possessed the facility of engendering such intense personal loyalty from not only within his own partisan ranks but also from minor opposition parties and, in fact, from the majority of the Canadian electorate as a whole as has Mr. Pearson.

That the prime minister has attracted such wide devotion stems largely from his Nobel prize-winning past performance in the field of international affairs and the fact that his conduct as an individual—as opposed to his behavior as a politician—has ever been above reproach.

Sadly it has remained for Mr. Pearson himself to tarnish the very image which was his strength. Because he is a man of integrity who believes loyalty should be repaid by loyalty he has decided on a course of standing by several of his cabinet ministers who have now become not only political liabilities to their own party but liabilities to the country itself.

Though such loyalty to his colleagues may be laudable, it is a narrow and dangerous one which Mr. Pearson must now balance against the far greater and important loyalty he owes the nation.

If he persists in following this misdirected sense of duty toward his partisan organization he will be neglecting his duty toward Canada. Already he has been warned by the leaders of the Social Credit Party and the New Democratic Party that they will no longer support his government if he does not "clean house."

The longer the prime minister delays his much needed "house cleaning" the more he places in jeopardy his own reputation, the status of his party and the welfare of the country.

Comforting Words

AS A MEMBER of the Commons defence committee Mr. David Gross may be presumed to have some inside knowledge on the subject even if there is small evidence that Mr. Hellyer paid much attention to the committee in framing his reorganization of the armed forces structure.

In any case the local Liberal MP offers some reassuring words about defence spending in this area. Victoria is fortunate, is the substance of his pronouncement. Unlike some communities in the United States where military installations have been closed down, he says, establishments will remain here in force.

He need scarcely have crossed the border to make this point; there are places in Canada where Mr. Hellyer's axe has fallen to the detriment of local military zeal. But one is grateful to have Mr. Gross' affirmation that this area will continue to benefit through the payrolls and attendant expenditures of the armed services located here.

The navy is still here, so is the army, and the defence department is still building ships.

In view of the long established nature of military things here even such comforting assurance seems rather redundant, however, unless of course that because of his inside knowledge he knows there has been some thought to closing out the installations we have been familiar with for many moons. Was it on the cards for example that the Esquimalt naval base would be shifted somewhere else, perhaps to the eastern seaboard? Army units may come and go according to departmental whim or the exigencies of military strategy but one had taken it for granted that the RCN base, which has been the axis of national defence on the Pacific Coast for half a century and more, and before that under RN jurisdiction almost since Victoria came into being, was a fixture the country couldn't do without. Not even Mr. Hellyer in his economy drive ever hinted at the possibility the navy payrolls would cease here. Nevertheless it is kindly of Mr. Gross to alleviate fears we did not have.

The shipbuilding he mentions is something else again. The defence minister did hint, and in no mean fashion, that a share of the contemplated new naval shipbuilding program wouldn't necessarily come to this area. It would seem that the local member has persuaded him otherwise. For Mr. Gross says without qualification that "we're going to get some of this work."

That is a positive statement we are glad to hear, and if it betokens Mr. Gross' personal intervention then in this respect he is serving his constituency with the merit one would expect.

Easing the Work

TO LIGHTEN the load on its individual members, Saanich council is preparing to petition the cabinet for provincial approval of the addition of two councillors to its ranks, bringing the total to eight plus the reeve. The seats created would be filled at by-elections later in the year.

This enlargement would be merely in anticipation of a change that would come automatically after the 1966 census: provincial legislation provides that a district municipality with a population of 50,000 or more will have eight councillors and a reeve, and by unofficial estimate, the people of Saanich already exceed 56,000 in number. The warrant for seeking the extra representation at this time is clear enough.

Not so certain, however, is that the increase in the size of council, whether soon or a year or two hence, will really have the desired result in materially reducing the time and effort now seemingly demanded or expected of each councillor. It could have the largely offsetting effect of adding two more voices to protract every debate and two more cooks for every pot of municipal soup.

If the work load is now oppressive, it could be suggested indeed that this is because the municipality retains at least vestiges of the old kind of ward politics, with councillors in fact overburdening themselves with the details of departmental management beyond the norm for a modern corporation of this size.

Some beneficial changes, such as the appointment of a personnel officer, are in immediate prospect. But perhaps it is time for Saanich to consider moving directly to the council-municipal manager form of local government, with council setting policy and a manager responsible for its effective and efficient administration.

The elected representatives calling the menu, in other words, and one chef cook running the kitchen.

By TOM TAYLOR

I WAS glad to read, as I hope you were too, that a voyager into adventure, a machinist turned sailor, was rescued after a month's solitary sojourn on a lonely island in the West Indies. The life of a Robinson Crusoe, with or without a Friday, is romantic beyond bounds, but only within the covers of a book. So it is that one welcomes this quondam sailor's safe return to civilization.

He was tanned, the news report says, in these days of unseasonably B.C. weather has an enviable quality for those unable to get off to sunny Hawaii, also an island but far from the desert variety experienced either by Alexander Selkirk or the Philadelphian referred to above.

To come to the point of this morning's causerie, assuming that it does reach significant portage, it was revealed that the West Indies eastward had lost 60 pounds; in weight, that is. Since he had subsisted mainly on shellfish, a diet that may have his virtues although for one years truly knows not thereof, having certain specialized gastronomic preferences, the slimming effect on his avoirdupois is not surprising. Let us hope he was rather a fat chap in the norm and that his diminution did him no harm.

But if I am to judge by conversations that marked the seasonal course over the recent holiday period, listened to but not contributed to in worthwhile measure by this writer, he being one of Pharaoh's lean breed and without need either of pushing himself away from the table or an enforced sojourn on a lonely island to bring down his weight, there is deep concern nowadays about the circumference of the middle sections, indeed of extreme portage spread all over. And not among the fair sex, to whom a streamlined silhouette is the acme of a perfection strenuously pursued in spite of occasional and fallible consumption of chocolate eclairs. Their problem has long been grievous, stimulated, kept alive and made a consciously continuing one by the fashion designers — mainly men — who decree what clothes they shall wear. How, secretly, they must envy their counterparts of bygone centuries whose charm apparently rested in their amplitude.

But it is the men who now are reaping where for others they have sowed. They too have come under the ordinance of the slim figure. Never have I heard so many estimable chaps bemoan their bulges as now. Diet has become their obsession as much as it is of their consorts, so that one may hear serious discussion of calories and all the other means of shaping themselves anew. What else when trouser legs have become fit only for beanpoles.

I can never offer to help with advice on this vexed subject, not daring to repeat the maxim that one should always leave the table feeling one can eat more — it's easy for you to talk, they'd say — nor suggest they should emulate the Philadelphian machinist-cum-sailor and spend a month as an island castaway, but my tender thoughts are with them. My heart is sympathetic.

Strange that youngsters now rival the high-rise architects in their personal reach for height, and that so many males seem afflicted with undue spread of girth. What is the modern world coming to, I wonder. Or, perhaps, homo sapiens was always thus — of uneven ballast but in the past happily then unconcerned about his physical looks. It is a pity mirror, or fashion designers, were ever invented.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

Sanford Fleming, later Sir Sanford, was born 148 years ago today — in 1827. Fleming originated the concept of standard time. He emigrated to Canada in 1845 from his native Scotland, and as a civil engineer made a number of surveys around Toronto. His long and distinguished career as a railway builder began in 1857. In 1880 he retired from the Canadian Pacific Railway and devoted himself to scientific and literary work. It was largely as a result of his efforts that international standard time was adopted in 1884. He also designed the first Canadian postage stamp, the three-penny beaver stamp, issued April 23, 1851.

First World War: Fifty years ago today — in 1915 — the British steamer Elfrida was sunk by a mine off Scarborough on the English east coast; German troops began a vigorous counter-offensive on the Argonne and Alsace sectors of the Western Front.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — Canadian Transport Minister C. D. Howe announced a British-Canadian shipbuilding program; Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, visited RAF headquarters in France; Russian-Finnish fighting stalled in 40-below weather.

On the Way to Mars

By JOHN DAVY

AMERICA'S Mariner IV space probe has been on its way to Mars for over a month. A detailed account of its infant adventures, which reads like a space-age version of the perils of Pauline, is now available. Mariner is dead on course, and doing fine — but there must be many more grey hairs at the Goldstone tracking station in the Californian desert than there were a month ago.

Thirty-eight minutes after Mariner TV took off, with a brief "parking orbit," it was headed into deep space at 25,586 miles per hour. Earth-based computers calculated that it would miss Mars by 151,000 miles.

The trackers and controllers on earth now had to achieve several complex manoeuvres by remote control. First, Mariner had to be "locked on" to a guiding star, Canopus, and simultaneously on to the sun. With these two holds in space, it could gather maximum solar power, and point its dish-like radio aerial directly back at the earth.

This involved several days of tense signalling to Mariner, and waiting for signals back, elaborate computation to discover what the signals meant, and renewed signalling across the rapidly widening gap between the spacecraft and earth.

It is easy enough to get Mariner to lock onto the sun, which is, as on earth, easily the most conspicuous object in the sky. But to find Canopus, which although bright, is far more tricky. It is done by signalling a command to the spacecraft which triggers a tiny gas jet. This starts Mariner rattling on one axis, so that a little light-sensitive "eye" begins to scan the sky.

The first time this was tried, 16½ hours after launch, Mariner locked on to a star called Aldebaran. Five and a half hours later, another command was sent: this time, Mariner pointed itself at Regulus. At 4 a.m. the next morning, after another command, it found Naos in the Milky Way.

At 5:45 a.m. another signal was sent, Mariner rolled for a further minute, then fixed on a dim anonymous cluster in the Milky Way. At last, at 5:58 a.m. Mariner rolled further and found Canopus, a giant yellowish star 100 light-years away. The spacecraft was then 380,000 miles from earth.

The next stage, still more nerve-racking, came on Dec. 4. The watchers on earth resolved to attempt a course correction. This is a considerably more complex manoeuvre than searching for Canopus, which demands only that the spacecraft rolls. Course correction demands a precisely pitched roll, and equally precise pitch, and a remote firing of an auxiliary propulsion rocket for a time which must be exact to within hundredths of a second. The first step was to feed three instructions into the computer aboard Mariner: the first said "pitch down 44 degrees"; the second said "roll 156 degrees"; the third said "fire motor for 20.18 seconds."

With these instructions safely stored—but not yet executed—three more signals were sent from earth. One (code number DC-29) armed the rocket motor; the second (code DC-14) removed a safety catch preventing premature firing.

Then came the critical moment, on which the success of the whole multi-million dollar mission depended: Signal number DC-27 started an automatic countdown in the computer aboard Mariner which would lead to the automatic carrying out of the pitch, roll and fire instructions.

But a few seconds later, the

Tense Moments with Mariner

By JOHN DAVY

trackers saw with consternation that Mariner had lost its lock on Canopus and begun to roll rapidly. This could have led the auxiliary rocket to drive the spacecraft completely off-course. So an emergency signal, DC-13, was sent, which cancelled the countdown and erased the stored instructions. Following this, Mariner locked on to four different stars in succession, none of them Canopus. The trackers were worse off than they had been at breakfast time when the manoeuvre began.

So, at 11:06 a.m. that day, Dec. 4, they left Mariner locked on to the wrong star and turned to their computers. That afternoon it was decided to try a new mid-course correction the next day; meanwhile, at 5:40 p.m., a new series of search signals began to be sent.

After no fewer than seven attempts—and each one meant commanding a roll which, if anything went wrong, could ruin the flight finally—Mariner found and locked on to Canopus at 6:59 p.m.

At 8:05 a.m. next day a new set of instructions was sent to the spacecraft's computer for storage: "pitch 38.2 degrees, roll 156.08 degrees, fire rocket for 20.06 seconds." Note that the controllers were working in hundredths of a degree and hundredths of a second, although they were having to manoeuvre the spacecraft over hundreds of thousands of miles of space, using tenuous radio links controlling small gas jets.

At 9:25 a.m. a new countdown began. This time it was a complete success. At 10:25 Mariner started to roll, slowly, continuing for three minutes 46 seconds. At 10:47 the pitch began, lasting 14 minutes and 9 seconds. Mariner was then in precisely the right position for course correction.

At 11:09 the rocket aboard Mariner fired and burned for a fraction over 20 seconds. At 11:35 a.m. Mariner found and locked on to Canopus again. The trackers turned anxiously to their computers.

It was soon clear from their calculations that they had achieved a triumph. The rocket had added just 28 mph to Mariner's speed. This would bring it past Mars two days sooner. But all-important, the miss-distance had been reduced from 151,000 to 5,400 miles. Mariner will now fly past the red planet at 8:11 p.m. New York time on July 14, 1965. This, at least, can now be confidently prophesied.

This does not mean, though, that Mariner's perils are over. In fact, it has already survived two others since the course correction: on Dec. 11 and Dec. 20 it passed through the track of two well-known meteor streams—the Geminids and the Ursids—while the trackers held their breath for fear that some tiny flying particle of matter should hit the delicate spacecraft and cripple it hopelessly. Next March it must survive one more such stream.

In addition, Mariner lost its Canopus lock again—apparently because tiny specks of space-borne dust were glinting and confusing the light-sensitive eye. But on Dec. 17, Canopus was re-acquired, and a coded signal, number DC-15, was sent, which should reduce the eye's chances of being confused again.

From now on, life at the California tracking station should be less tense for a while, as Mariner cruises towards its destination. But any day one or other of the delicate electronic components on board could expire and the mission come to a premature end.

The incentive to success is all the greater because the Russian Mars probe, Zond 2, is hot on Mariner's heels. It appears to be still slightly behind, and shortly after launch the Russians said that it was only broadcasting on half-power. Whether this will prejudice its performance at the distance of Mars has not been revealed. However, Zond II is evidently very much larger than Mariner, and may carry not only a lot of spare equipment to cope with faults, but also more powerful cameras. The Russians announced recently that Zond also carries "plasma" jets — tiny, electrically-powered motors which eject a stream of accelerated atoms—for controlling orientation in space. These are extremely economical in fuel. The Russians must have considerable spare weight-carrying capacity to accommodate such motors in addition to ordinary gas jets.

Thus, next July will have some tense moments, as we await the first close-up photographs of the mysterious planet which is the only one in the solar system at all likely to harbor anything which we should recognize as life.

The photographs, if received, and whether Russian or American, will not show unequivocally if Mars has life or not, although they may offer supporting evidence. But they will reveal details of the surface far beyond what earthbound telescopes can produce. In particular, we should know definitely whether the surface does or does not bear anything looking like those famous "canals."

He Keeps His Word

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

SAY what you will about Conservative Leader Diefenbaker—and these days, almost everybody seems to be sounding off about him—but admit you must that he's a man of his public word.

Call him irascible, as most people, even his friends, have come to do.

Say he's unreasonable, as all of his foes, and now, a few of his allies claim.

Protest that he's terrible-tempered, as have most of the Liberal cabinet who, in moments of parliamentary recklessness, have irritated him.

Charge, as has Prime Minister Pearson, in naming him "The Great Reflector," that more and more he has made political condemnation his way of public life.

Say all the things that his political foes and now, seemingly, an increasing number of his friends are saying.

But don't forget to say that he's consistent, that when he gives an undertaking he keeps it, and once taking a position on principle, holds stubbornly to it long after many other people have forgotten about it and wish he would, too.

For the second year in succession he has mailed back to the government that parliamentary pay increase against which he and nine other members of the Commons voted 18 months ago.

Last year he remitted $5,589, the amount to which the pay increase came in the nine months following its July passage. He made retroactive to the April election.

He caused quite a book-keeping flap in the Commons accounting office when, from July through to December, he failed to cash any of his parliamentary pay cheques.

Later he explained that he couldn't cash them as they were issued monthly, but had to wait until the year-end so he could remit the refund in the one lump sum.

This year he mailed his cheque to the Receiver General of Canada for $8,000, the full amount of the increase which took parliamentary pay from an annual $10,000 to $18,000.

The refund cheque he marked as a "Gift for the Crown." As a gift to the government, it becomes tax exempt.

"No use paying taxes on money you can't accept and won't use," he says.

Associates have suggested that he had proved his point last year when he mailed back the $5,589, and that now an additional $8,000 reconfirmation of his opposition to the near-100 per cent parliamentary pay increase was scarcely necessary.

But he refused to see it that way.

He wasn't proving or "reconfirming" anything.

It was just that "I like to do what I say I will—life's too short not to carry out your undertakings."

Actually, he didn't object to the pay increase as such — although he did believe it was "a bit much, $8,000 would have been more reasonable." — It was the way in which it was done he found so objectionable. He believed then, and still does, that the taxpayers should have been consulted, and that if there was to have been a pay increase, it shouldn't have been brought in until after the next election.

So he's mailing back his, and will keep right on mailing it back, year after year as long as he remains in Parliament.

Financially, this is not easy. For John Diefenbaker, always too occupied with public service to be bothered much about private gain, has little, if any money put by.

"Haven't got much," he told a friend the other day, "but still enjoy life—and taking money I don't want and wouldn't use hardly could make it more enjoyable."

But isn't $13,589 quite a bit to pay in the name of consistency? "When it comes to making good your word," he says, "it's a small price."

Oddly, when you look back on it, Creditiste Real Caouette was one of the nine who stood with Mr. Diefenbaker against the pay increase, but only the Conservative leader, on the basis, he says, that "a man is only as good as his word," has followed through with those "gifts to the Crown" refunds.

Reds Using Generals, Tactics That Defeated French

U.S. Losing Viet Nam War

By JACK POINE
from Saigon

The U.S. is losing the war in Viet Nam.

In private discussion, American generals concede that the past year has been one of declining fortunes for Vietnamese forces in the field.

They tend to blame the military reversals of 1964 upon the political unrest in Saigon that toppled five governments within 23 months—four of them by coups d'état.

Even American Ambassador Maxwell Taylor has said publicly "the issue is very much in doubt." He refers to the ability of the South Vietnamese Republic to maintain its independence, even with massive American support, in the face of continuing government instability and shrinking control over major roads and a countryside dotted by 10,000 hamlets of peasant farmers.

Taylor decries the lack of national unity among the Vietnamese.

Neither he nor any of the 22,600 military or civilian Americans in Viet Nam can quite understand how a combine of Viet Nam generals, proven fighters in the past, can forsake their field commands to plot and manoeuvre for governmental power—while the nation's liberty goes down the drain.

Despite a reputed 2-1 ratio in favor of the government in casualties (6,000 government troops killed in 1964, against 12,000 guerrillas), the Viet Cong strength has continued to rise. This is conceded by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces in Viet Nam.

The villagers—who compose the vast majority of the people—do not care about, or even understand, the difference between Democracy and Communism. Within the memory of the oldest member of the family, "government" has meant the payment of burdensome, if not insufferable, taxes. In return, the peasant was left alone.

Even as guerrillas and government forces fight over their villages (and the right to penetrate the minds of the villagers), the villagers would prefer just to be left alone.

However, forced to choose sides, they are going to pick the side that appears to be winning. At this time, in many areas,

Troops Named For UN Force

OTTAWA (CP)—A Squadron of the 8th Canadian Hussars will replace the reconnaissance regiment's D-Squadron early next month in the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt, the defence department announced Monday.

the victor appears to be the Viet Cong.

Guerrilla territorial domination stops short of all of Viet Nam's centres of population. Saigon is horse-collared but not surrounded.

In all 45 provinces, the provincial seat is still government held, even in provinces almost completely dominated by guerrillas, with their own government, and their own capital.

Still, the relative security of the larger towns, the cities and the capital of Saigon with its 2,000,000 people, provide little comfort for those who recall the fate of the French in similar insurgent warfare here hardly more than a decade ago.

Then the cities and towns remained in French hands. The guerrillas, then called the Viet Minh but with their same generals now leading the Viet Cong, chose to isolate the centres of population, not assault them. And the strategy is the same today.

For one of the principles of guerrilla warfare is never to risk large forces in battle when the job can be done with less loss through intrigue and stealth. Nowhere have the insurgents yet thrown more than 1,000 men into stand-up conflict with government troops.

To bring about the fall of Saigon—or more important, the total collapse of an anti-Communist government within the city, the strategy of the Viet Cong is becoming apparent.

Sever the main roads leading from the city and so bring about disruption of food supplies and economic disorder. Infiltrate agents to inflame the malcontent factions, be they political or religious.

All these tactics are being employed. In recent months, even in recent weeks, the Viet Cong success within Saigon has matched its gains in the field.

Providing a stable national government can be established, there will be time to win back the people, a village at a time. But it will take many years, at least a decade. The British took that long to defeat communist guerrillas in Malaya under somewhat similar circumstances.

In a decade, if American support of the Vietnamese continues at its present pace, many career soldiers will serve in Vietnam two or three times.

BACKGROUND

Commonwealth Supplies 'Teeth'

By FRED HOFFMAN, from Washington

The Malaysian federation has about 18,000-20,000 men in its regular forces with about twice as many men in the paramilitary forces. These chiefly are police whose mission is preserving internal security.

The Malaysian navy is a collection of patrol craft, motor gunboats, minesweepers and other small vessels. The federation has virtually no combat air force.

The British and other Commonwealth forces available for Malaysia's defence number about 40,000 men. With reinforcements coming from Britain, the total is rising.

A British carrier is in the area and another is due to join the British Far East fleet.

All told, Britain maintains some 80 naval ships in Southeast Asian waters. These include fast destroyer types which would be death to any invading amphibious fleet of the sort Indonesia could mount.

British air power in the Malaysian area includes at least four squadrons of medium and light bombers and jet fighters capable of dealing with Indonesia's Russian-built MiGs and aging bombers.

By conservative estimate, Indonesia has about 250,000 men under arms.

Her air force has an assortment of 100 or so MiGs, including a small number of the more modern MIG-21s. Her bombers are mainly jet-powered IL-28s.

The Indonesian navy is the pride of the nation. It is led by a heavy cruiser given by the Soviet Union and features some 20 or more submarines.

SUKARNO

Repercussions Feared

Hong Kong Nervous

By EDWARD NEILAN, from Hong Kong

Here in Hong Kong the Malay-ian crisis is viewed with considerable more urgency than the situation in South Viet Nam. Hong Kong has the added concern in any British involvement of possible irritation of Communist China.

Peking backs Sukarno's "confrontation" and British troops and warships based in Hong Kong are being sent to Malaysia to join in Malaysia's defence. Rec. China would have ample opportunity to turn up pressure on the British here in Hong Kong.

Consideration of possible Chinese moves against Hong Kong conditioned British behavior in pushing for Korean negotiations and opposing bombing beyond the Yalu River in Red China.

There are predictions here that the South Viet Nam war will simmer for awhile and that more spectacular fireworks will be seen from an impending Malaysia-Indonesia showdown.

Wilson Fears Costly Clash

By HAROLD MORRISON, from London

Prime Minister Wilson is reported to be increasingly concerned that despite all restraints, President Sukarno may order an all-out Indonesian war against Malaysia, involving Britain and the Commonwealth in a costly clash that could spread throughout Southeast Asia.

While Wilson made no comment on the deteriorating situation, sources close to him suggested that Sukarno may throw all caution to the winds and launch an attack, hoping to draw support from Communist China.

While still battling grave economic problems at home, Wilson has given the assurance that Britain will stand by Malaysia, though it is understood that if war comes, British Commonwealth countries would carry a share of the defence burden.

This would apply particularly to Australia and New Zealand which already have defence commitments in that area.

It is understood that Canada would refrain from direct involvement in a war though Malaysia could expect to get contributions of Canadian equipment.

A British informant said Wilson now has placed the issue in the hands of his military advisers, though action will be continued at the UN and other political quarters in the hope that the Soviet Union and others close to Indonesia may help ward off open conflict.

As a precaution, Britain has already ordered about 1,200 troops into the Far East and The Sun said Tuesday that another 1,000 troops have been placed on the alert for air transport into the area within seven days if the threat against Malaysia increases.

Ships are being taken out of mothballs and a portion of the British V-bomber force has been brought to a state of readiness for Far East duty if necessary.

These bombers could use both nuclear and conventional explosives. One report suggests that if the bombers have to make a hurried flight to the Far East, they would be refuelled over Canada.

Gospels Twisted to Support Infamies

I Hate Biblical Bigotry!

I am sick of hearing people support the most outrageous arguments with quotations from the Bible. Armed with excerpts from the Holy Book, so-called Christians piously justify war, segregation, the outlawing of birth control, censorship, capital punishment and countless other poisonous human afflictions in the name of their religion.

One wonders how the gentle and tolerant Jesus of Nazareth would look upon these people were He here today. Probably the same way He looked upon them almost 2,000 years ago: "Ye outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity."

The Bible-thumping Oliver Cromwell, while systematically slaughtering several hundred defenceless women and children at Drogheda, Ireland, was heard to say as he lifted his eyes to heaven: "Thank God for the strength to work this glorious purge."

One could easily, for example, choose to interpret the four Gospels as depicting Christ as a very wicked man. In Matthew 18, 34, Christ says, "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword."

And in Luke 19, 27, He cries, "But those mine enemies which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither and slay them before me."

These words do not indicate a gentle Saviour, but a bloodthirsty megalomaniac. Therefore with divine precedent and scriptural authority, we too will all be bloodthirsty megalomaniacs.

Furthermore, according to the Gospels, Christ was a thief—He openly instructed His disciples to steal an ass and a colt in Matthew 21, 2. As well, He was guilty of malicious damage—He overthrew tables in a temple and slaughtered an innocent man's herd of swine in order to spectacularise a miracle.

He was also a sabbath-breaker and, according to some contemporaries, a "glutton," "a wine-bibber" and "a friend of publicans and harlots."

Therefore, again with divine precedent and scriptural authority, we too will all be thieves, vandals, atheists and libertines.

Of course, all this is nonsense—I have absolutized isolated passages and ignored the underlying spirit of Christ's words and actions. But it is not one whit more nonsensical than 90 per cent of the Bible quoting that goes on today in defence of the most pernicious and outrageous doctrines.

Ever since the tolerant and peace-loving Jesus of Nazareth died, the gentle spirit of His religion has been twisted and perverted by many of those who call themselves Christians.

Today, many American politicians seem to love nothing better than to invoke the name of God and words of the Bible while talking of over-kill bombs and the destruction of other countries.

By

OPINION

In this age also, church and state still loftily quote the scriptures in resisting birth-control, with the result that millions upon millions are every year born needlessly into starvation and misery.

In South Africa and the Southern United States too, racists justify segregation and white supremacy by pointing to obscure scriptural passages.

The Lord and the Bible have become, in short, little more than devices whereby men may invent their opinions with infinitely more authority than they deserve.

Of course, this kind of bigotry and hypocrisy is not at all new. In fact, it was this very bigotry and hypocrisy which so vexed, and eventually destroyed Jesus Himself.

"Full well ye reject the commandments of God," He said to the sanctimonious Pharisees, "that ye may keep your own tradition."

Throughout His short life, His charity and tolerance were continually greeted with righteous wrath and pious condemnation by the so-called men of God. And now the fact that Christ was far more interested in alleviating the lot of mankind than He was in judging and punishing His fellows is conveniently forgotten.

It is forgotten because it is much easier for pretending Christians to devote their zeal to condemning and hurting people rather than helping them.

So the Pharisees of today are ever ready with scriptural authority whereby they may increase misery and, therefore, their own importance. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said Jesus.

Would that we did.

For Cars

Parts Pact Due Soon

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada and the United States hope to reach final agreement next week on establishing a free-trade agreement in motor vehicles and parts going into new vehicles.

The main unsettled point, informants said Wednesday in both countries, is a firm commitment from General Motors Corporation to the Canadian government on the share of the American market it will allocate to its Canadian plants.

OBJECTIVE

The objective of the negotiations begun last summer has been to give Canada a wider market for its auto and auto-parts industry. One eventual by-product would be cheaper vehicles in Canada since the tariff differential between the two countries now is about 17 per cent.

But a reduction would come gradually. Motor industry spokesmen and others Wednesday objected sharply to any speculation a sudden price cut would follow.

The arrangement, it has been emphasized, would lead toward a price reduction which might take five to 10 years to achieve in maximum form.

ALLOWS RISE

This does not, of course, rule out the possibility of prices increasing in each country beyond existing levels, if manufacturers feel production costs justify such a step.

But in Canada, if the free-trade arrangement means what it proposes, cars should still be cheaper over the long haul than if the arrangement didn't exist.

The Canadian industry as a whole would benefit in theory from being able to expand output for a continental market but considerable adjustment by auto and parts makers would still be necessary, with specialization one likely consequence. Eventually, the concept might be extended to replacement parts as well, it has been suggested.

The arrangement grew from talks seeking an alternative to the export-incentive scheme initiated by Canada as a way to diminish an auto-trade deficit with the U.S. of more than $500,000,000 annually.

But the U.S. objected. Agreement by next week hinges on the Canadian government and General Motors settling their difference. Industry, labor and governments have had roles in the negotiations.

TIME TABLE HIT

GM is understood to have objected to the timetable proposed by Canada for the huge corporation allocating a bigger slice of the U.S. market to its Canadian plants.

GM is the largest auto maker in North America, sharing domination of the continent with Ford and Chrysler.

But it is expected, say informants, that the GM-Canadian matter will be resolved by next week.

Chatterton Outlines Pension Plan

The Canada Pension Plan is the most important social legislation introduced in this country. Ensignment-Sanich MP George Chatterton told a meeting of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

"Once this bill becomes law, it will become extremely hard to change it as two-thirds of the provinces taking part in the plan will have to approve the change," he said.

COMPULSORY

Mr. Chatterton explained that the pension plan would begin Jan. 1, 1966, and would be compulsory for all people who are earning more than $600 and under $3,000.

"Employees will pay 1.8 per cent of their annual wages and employers will contribute the same amount," he said. "Self-employed people will have to pay the full 3.6 per cent."

He stated that a person would have to contribute for 10 years before being able to benefit from the scheme.

He added that employees between the ages of 18 and 70 would have to pay as long as they are employed.

"Provincial employees and agencies associated with the provincial governments are exempt from the scheme unless special arrangements are made between the two governments," Mr. Chatterton said.

Other agencies exempt are the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

For Him Pistol Clicked

KAMLOOPS (CP)—A man told a preliminary hearing Wednesday that he almost became a third victim in a street shooting here Nov. 7 that led to a capital murder charge against Daniel Lawrence Carleton.

William David Lindsay of North Kamloops said a man shot several times at Paul Rene Viau, fled across the parking lot where Lindsay stood, and with the same gun aimed at Lindsay and pulled the trigger.

Lindsay said the gun clicked harmlessly, the man ran farther away, then returned to the original scene and shot Mrs. Lynne Mobley.

The incident, which occurred in downtown Kamloops, claimed Viau's life. Mrs. Mobley was seriously injured.

Lindsay identified Carleton as the man he had seen shoot several times at Viau. He told of hearing a "pop" and seeing the victim clutch his stomach as Mrs. Mobley screamed: "No, no."

After more "pops" the victim fell into a gutter and the gunman shot again at his head.

Lindsay said he heard the gun clicking several times, then the gunman ran across the parking lot toward him. The man pointed the gun at him and he heard it click, Lindsay said. He dived for cover under his truck and the man ran into an alley.

Lindsay went into a building to shout what he had seen and returned to see the gunman and Mrs. Mobley together. He heard another "pop" and saw the woman lurch forward.

Later still he saw the man with his upraised hand holding the pistol, his knees buckling as he fell down.

Magistrate D. M. MacDonald is presiding over the hearing, which continues.

OTTAWA (CP)—The revenue department is going to tighten up on taxpayers who use their own automobiles for business purposes.

An information bulletin was issued Wednesday showing taxpayers how they must submit claims for automobile expenses. No longer will they be able to claim a simple fixed percentage of total car expenses for business purposes.

The department made the move after making a survey of expense-account living.

Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said "there has been a growing tendency for persons who use their own cars for both business and pleasure—such as professional persons or commission salesmen—to claim a fixed percentage of their automobile expenses year after year."

The information bulletin tells taxpayers that in future it will be necessary to list the total miles travelled each year, with details of the miles travelled for business and pleasure.

WASHINGTON—Who is Khalil Khan? What is a Bakhtiari? What about the prince, the princess and the $2,500,000?

Alice in Wonderland? No, just a day at the U.S. state department.

It all began when a man named Khalil Goodarzi got a court order claiming the title of Iran's brother, Prince Mahmoud Reza Pahlavi, and his sister, Princess Fatima, each owed him $1,250,000 for promoting sports events for Iran.

Not so, says the royal family. Worse, Goodarzi was a phony khan with no right to the title, they added.

Goodarzi says that not only is the money rightfully his, but that he is a bonafide khan, boss of 2,000,000 Bakhtiari tribesmen in Southwest Iran.

The case, launched Aug. 6, 1963, has involved Iranian ambassador Mahmoud Foroughi, several lawyers and a New York court beside the state department—and is not yet resolved.

SANTA MONICA — Actress Pier Angeli has arrived from Rome for the start of a child custody hearing in which her former husband, singer Vic Danne, seeks permanent custody of their son Perry.

SAN'A — President Abdullah Al-Sallal has asked Maj.-Gen. Hassan Asari, Yemen's vice-president, to replace Premier Hamud Jayfi and form a new cabinet.

MONTREAL — The captain of the Danish freighter Helga Dan was presented with the gold-headed cane for bringing the first vessel into Montreal harbor in 1965. Capt. Kaj Hladborg brought his vessel in on New Year's Day to set an early arrival mark that can't be beaten.

FLAT ROCK, N.C. — Carl Sandburg, Pulitzer prize-winning poet and historian, celebrated a "very quiet" 87th birthday Wednesday at his mountain home.

NEW YORK — A federal grand jury investigating the alleged kidnapping of Cosa Nostra chief Joseph (Joe Bonanno) Bonanno apparently struck out on three counts when a son Bill and Joseph Jr. had little to say and a daughter failed to appear.

PORT OF SPAIN — Conservative leader John Diababakar, returned to the Trinidad capital from Tobago where he had spent several days on vacation with his wife and brother Elmer.

LONDON — Viscount Montgomery said sharply he would have "no comment at all on Gen. Omar Bradley's charge that Montgomery failed to close the Falaise gap during the Second World War because he was "darned scared."

BRANDON — Alexander Pappas is thriving on his diet of milk from donor nursing mothers, the 4½-month-old boy's mother says. Alexander now weighs 13 pounds and consumes 42 to 45 ounces of milk a day, Mrs. Constantine (Gus) Pappas said.

CALGARY — Robert Neville Talbot, former Canadian Cancer Society official charged with theft and uttering in the disappearance of $191,000 in society funds, may be tried before a special sitting of the Alberta Supreme Court Jan. 20.

PARIS — The ministry of population and public health confirms that Italian movie producer Carlo Ponti has applied for French citizenship. In Rome, Ponti, the husband of actress Sophia Loren, denied he had requested French citizenship and said he had no plans to do so.

LONDON — Queen Mother Elizabeth will fly to Jamaica Feb. 18 to receive an honorary degree at the University of the West Indies.

OTTAWA (CP)—Traffic accidents on Canadian roads and streets in October claimed 492 lives, compared with 455 in the same month of 1963, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Escape Adds Months

PORT COQUITLAM (CP)—Larry Kanester, convicted of rape in the attacks upon two University of Victoria co-eds last summer, was sentenced to nine months when he appeared in police court here Tuesday, charged with escaping lawful custody. Kanester fled from nearby Vancouver mental hospital last November but gave himself up several weeks later. The new sentence will be served concurrently with a 20-year term given earlier for rape.

Phony Cheque Passer Pressed Luck Too Far

A man who cashed a worthless cheque for $25 at the Woolco department store Dec. 19, returned again the same day to cash a second for $25, then a third Dec. 20 for $30 and a fourth Dec. 21 for $30.

"I am unemployed and I need the money for home," said Bryan Davidson, 1184 Esquimalt Road, when arrested by Saanich police.

This statement was entered in

Prisoner Improved

A William Head minimum security establishment prisoner who was critically injured with a 7,000-volt shock Dec. 23 was taken off the critical list Tuesday.

Norman Fischer fell 25 feet from a power pole when hit by the electricity.

A spokesman said Fischer was out of danger but will remain in Veterans' Hospital for some time.

Moscow Ends Exile Decree

MOSCOW (AP) — A 1941 wartime decree exiling the ethnic German population of the Lower Volga region to Siberia has been rescinded.

The new decree makes no provision for returning the exiles to their former homes, but ordered special schools and other cultural facilities provided for them.

evidence at Davidson's appearance Wednesday in Saanich magistrate's court.

Davidson entered a plea of guilty on all four counts of obtaining money by means of a worthless cheque.

Magistrate William Oatler adjourned the case until Jan. 14 for a probation report and sentence.

A man with a long history of thefts, possession of drugs, and three suicide attempts, John Montgomery was sentenced to one year in Oakalla for stealing a coat from Lee's restaurant, 548 Fingard, Dec. 17.

Montgomery and the coat were picked up at Room 62, Chandler Hotel, 723 Yates Street, a few hours after the 12:30 a.m. theft.

George Rosman, 136 Conard Street, was castigated for "wilful disobedience" and sentenced to five months in jail by Magistrate Oatler on his fourth conviction of driving while his licence was under suspension.

Rosman was arrested at 7 p.m. Tuesday. The truck he was driving on the wrong side of the street had neither head lights nor tail lights.

A man fined $100 Monday for driving while his licence was under suspension, Rick Maycock, of 57 Cadillac, was back in court Wednesday.

He had been arrested at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday for again driving while his licence was under suspension.

Maycock said he had used his car to take his wife, who is expecting a baby in about a month, to see her doctor. He said he couldn't use a taxi or a bus for he had no money.

Maycock will appear in court again Jan. 14 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Bail was set at $750 each for two 18-year-old youths charged with possession of house-breaking tools.

Robert Richardson, 1 Island Court Motel, and Glen Galbraith, 963 Isabella Avenue, were remanded without plea until Friday.

Paul Kannaspara, 38, 807 Mary Street, was fined $25 for carrying a concealed weapon.

Kannaspara said the weapon, a knife made in Finland, was a souvenir that had been returned to him by a friend only 15 minutes before he was apprehended. He said he had had no intention of using it.

'Tyranny Of Bishops'

LONDON (AP)—Rev. Christopher Wansey, Anglican vicar of Roydon, Essex, called on Prime Minister Wilson Wednesday to end what he called "this tyranny of state-appointed bishops" in the Church of England.

He asked Wilson to refuse to name any more bishops so the church can choose them by election.

They are nominated by the prime minister in agreement with the archbishops of Canterbury and York and appointed by the monarch.

Disinterest Of Youth Hits Burns

KELOWNA (CP)—Disinterest among the young has forced cancellation of Robert Burns Day celebrations here this year, Thomas Angus said Wednesday.

Mr. Angus, a past president of a United Church service group, said he had been connected with Burns Day celebrations more than 40 years and that the city had seen traditional festivities the last 13 years.

"The older members of the group would like to commemorate the affair but there doesn't seem to be enough interest among the younger members," he said.

"The celebrations in the past have been staged over two or three-day periods and involved close to 500 people."

Icy Roads Ditch Saanich Cars

A midnight accident near Sidney that sent a woman to hospital was the preliminary to a series of road mishaps due to icy conditions Wednesday morning on the Saanich Peninsula.

New Tremor Hits Algiers

ALGERS (UPI)—Another strong earthquake brought weakened houses crashing down in the already damaged mountain town of M'Sila, 130 miles south-east of here, seriously injuring three people.

Most of the 12,000 inhabitants had fled the town after an earthquake last week.

The car in which she was riding, driven by Adrian Grootveld, 2440 Amelia Avenue, skidded on ice and hit a telephone pole while a left hand turn was being made from Patricia Bay Highway onto Lochside Drive.

Neither Mr. Grootveld nor his wife, also in the car, was injured.

Exports Fall

LONDON (Reuters)—British aircraft exports fell by about £21,000,000 ($63,800,000) in the first 11 months of last year compared with the same period in 1963, the Society of British Aerospace Companies announced.

LITTLE TROUBLE—Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Colwood and Sooke reported little trouble with icy streets Wednesday morning.

Although icy conditions continued until past 9 a.m. from North Saanich to the Victoria city municipal boundary, only Saanich municipality reported accidents as cars and buses took people to work.

At 7 a.m. a bus went into a ditch at Marigold and Carey. A truck was sent to help and it ended up in the ditch.

A bus dispatched to take the passengers off the ditched bus also went off the road.

No one was injured in these mishaps, nor in the case of a car which turned over at 8 a.m. on Royal Oak Avenue; nor in a five-car pile-up at Dumerac and Interurban about the same time.

NO INJURIES

Two cars went off the road into three feet of water and two overturned at Blenkinsop near Mount Douglas Cross Road. There were no injuries.

George Sherriff, 84, of 3449 Calumet, slipped and fell on ice in the 1300-block, Oak Street. He is at home nursing a bruised shoulder after being checked over at St. Joseph's Hospital.

An officer with Sidney RCMP said the treacherous condition was the worst in that area since the start of the cold weather.

Must Stay in Texas

Stonehill Out of Jail As Big Bond Posted

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Harry S. Stonehill, international business operator arrested Monday night as he stepped off a plane from Mexico, was released from jail Wednesday after posting a $100,000 federal bond.

An examining trial scheduled for Wednesday was postponed until 9:30 a.m. Friday to allow time for legal documents involved in the case to get here from federal court in New York.

Stonehill gained freedom Wednesday as he posted the bond with a $48,000 cashier's cheque from New York and three $20,000 money orders from California. Two were from Beverly Hills and one from Los Angeles.

Terms of the bond stipulate that Stonehill must stay in the jurisdiction of the federal court of the western district of Texas. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents arrested the former U.S. army sergeant—now a millionaire living in Canada—as he stepped off an airliner that brought him from Mexico.

J. Myers Cole, FBI agent in charge here, said Stonehill was arrested on a June 23, 1964, warrant issued by U.S. court in the southern district of New York.

INDICTMENT

Cole said an indictment brought down Wednesday by a New York grand jury accuses Stonehill of shipping three crates of cigarette manufacturing machinery to Manila June 12, 1961, under a pretense the boxes contained grain threshing machines.

The FBI said Stonehill is charged with violating the Espionage Act and with conspiracy to defraud.

An assistant U.S. attorney called Stonehill "an active figure in the international business scene," including Japan, the Philippines and Hong Kong.

TO LEAVE CANADA

Stonehill was deported from the Philippines in 1962 and went to Vancouver with his family in 1963 after being ordered out of Mexico.

He had told Canadian immigration officials he would leave Canada by Jan. 9.

Mrs. Stonehill and the children have been given permission to stay in Canada until the end of the school year.

Stonehill and an associate, Robert Brooks, were deported from the Philippines on charges of corrupting government officials. The former sergeant amassed a fortune estimated at $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 in Manila after the Second World War.

Starvation Trap Lures Wildfowl

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Nature may have lured hundreds of wildfowl into a starvation trap in south-central British Columbia and a provincial game branch spokesman says there's little that can be done about it.

Biologist Ralph Ritcey said Wednesday that the birds are lining the South Thompson River and Shuswap Lake areas. The situation was particularly bad in the Chase area.

Mr. Ritcey said three mild winters encouraged hundreds of birds to remain in the area instead of migrating to warmer climates. This year, most of the feeding areas are frozen and the birds are in poor condition.

Once his department began to feed the birds, they would come to depend on the food supply and even more fowl would stay in the area. It would reach the point where it would be impossible to supply enough food.

"We cannot jeopardize the future of hundreds of birds that realize there is no food here and fly south," Mr. Ritcey said.

The only hope, he said, is for the birds to realize there is no food for them and to fly south before they're too weak to travel.

Oldsters Job Plan Succeeding

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government's drive to persuade employers to hire older workers is having considerable success. Postmaster-General Nicholson said Wednesday night. About 2,000 workers aged 45 or over found jobs in the five months of the older worker employment and training incentive program. Under the program, the labor department paid 50 per cent of the monthly wages of older workers hired by employers.

Speaking to the Vancouver Eagles Aerie, Mr. Nicholson said the federal government itself is setting a good example by removing age limits from most of its job classifications. The result is that more than 20 per cent of all federal hirings are of persons 40 years of age or over.

Second Test Successful

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The controversial supersonic F-111, better known as the TFX, soared off without apparent incident Wednesday on its second test flight.

A spokesman for General Dynamics, which built the plane, called the take-off "highly successful."

The first flight Dec. 21 was cut short when wing flaps would not retract. The malfunction was corrected a day later.

In Cathedral Precinct

New High-Rise Proposal Means Rezoning Study

A projected high-rise for the Cathedral Hill precinct, an area which was restricted by bylaw four years ago when it was considered putting city hall in the former B.C. Power Commission building. Restrictions have never been lifted and the actual site of the building is zoned for parking area. City officials add that the projected building, which is expected to be about 140 feet high, does not conform in some other respects with city regulations. Planning officials say that the reason for discussion and examination is that the $500,000 building is planned for the group of businessmen planning the building.

The firm has designed about 40 apartment buildings, mostly in the Vancouver area. This is its first Victoria venture.

The proposed building would back directly on the Royal Theatre. All suites would have a southern outlook over Beacon Hill Park and Juan de Fuca Street, to the east over Fairfield toward the Gulf Islands or west to the Sooke hills.

Chickens? Why Not Plants?

At least one Saanich taxpayer is unhappy about the municipality compensating residents whose chickens are killed by dogs.

John W. Rowan, who owns property in Saanich but lives at 656 Lamson Street in Esquimalt, believes if compensation is paid for chickens it should also be paid for damage to plants or buildings caused by dogs or children.

Why should the municipality compensate someone for damage not caused by the municipality? Mr. Rowan asked in a letter to council.

'INSULT IS RIGHT'

His letter came in the wake of an earlier council decision to pay Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jessop, 389 Viaduct, 50 cents each for 17 chickens apparently killed by a dog.

Mrs. Jessop claimed the egg-laying chickens were worth between $2.50 and $3, adding that "fifty cents is just an insult." "She is absolutely right," right," wrote Mr. Rowan. "It is an insult to the taxpayers that they should pay anything."

"Maybe the Jessops would like the taxpayers to buy their eggs for them?"

AMOUNT RAISED

Mr. Rowan ended his letter with the remark: "Gentlemen, let us not have any more of this nonsense."

But council decided to raise Mrs. Jessop's compensation to $1.25 for each chicken.

Vancouver's Arena Just Too Small

Gordon Jukes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said the CAHA would like to schedule games by touring international hockey teams for Vancouver but the city just doesn't have the facilities.

Jukes made the comment in connection with plans for a five-team international hockey league that would include Canada, the United States, Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

Under the proposal, to be discussed by the International Ice Hockey Federation during a meeting at Tampere, Finland, in March, each foreign team would play three games in Canada.

"To make it economical, we would have to play the games in Canadian cities where there are arenas with a minimum of 8,000-seat capacity," Jukes said. "Vancouver doesn't fit into this category."

An arena, to seat 20,000, was proposed for Vancouver by St. John's, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. The proposal, which called for a gift of city land, was turned down by Vancouver voters in December elections.

Meanwhile, Reeve Alan Ammott of Burnaby says he is seeking financial help from the provincial and federal governments to help build a 20,000-seat coliseum in Burnaby.

Reeve Ammott said he wrote to Premier Bennett in December asking for the same proportion the provincial government offered to Vancouver.

VACLAV NEDOMANSKY, 21, a forward on the Czechoslovakian national team, has been

Lease Set For Seattle Ball Club

SEATTLE (AP)—Los Angeles Angels signed a one-year lease for Sicks' Stadium Tuesday for their new Seattle farm club. . . . The Seattle team, also to be known as the Angels, was purchased by Los Angeles after Boston Red Sox asked to be relieved of the franchise.

Marvin Milkes, assistant general manager of the American League team, signed for Los Angeles. He is here to help arrange the Angels' takeover and to attend the Pacific Coast League meeting Saturday.

The PCL meeting is expected to approve the 1968 schedule, the Los Angeles purchase of Seattle, Vancouver's re-entry in the league, Boston's withdrawal and the working agreement between Hawaii and Washington.

Valuable Kick

A penalty-goal, kicked by Ron Salia, was the only scoring as Mount View tripped Esquimalt, 3-0, in a Victoria High School Senior Rugby League game yesterday.

P.E.I. Rink Top of Heap

TORONTO (CP)—Doug Cameron drew in the four-foot ring with last rock Wednesday night to give Prince Edward Island a thrilling 7-6 extra-end victory over Ontario in fourth round play in the second annual Tournament of Champions.

It was a sensational win for the island foursome who remained the only undefeated rink in round-robin play as Manitoba

P.E.I. rink finally edged into the lead in the ninth end with Cameron throwing a double takeout with his last stone to count one.

DREW TO INSIDE

But Roberts drew to the inside with his final stone in the 10th end, sending the match into the first extra ends of the tournament.

Lee Gervais failed in his bid for a double takeout with his last stone as Alberta fell from the ranks of the undefeated to a rink skipped by Hersch Lerner of Winnipeg.

Lerner left two rocks counting and Gervais managed to remove only one. Alberta and Manitoba are tied for second with a 3-1 record while Saskatchewan and Ontario are 2-2.

TOP FOUR

The four top teams after today's three rounds qualify for the semi-finals Friday afternoon and a chance at the $5,000 first-place merchandise prize list in the Friday night finals.

In third-round play, P.E.I. nipped Saskatchewan 5-3 in another thriller. Alberta dumped Ontario 11-4, Manitoba dropped the Bob Magie - skipped foursome from Duluth 17-5, and B.C., the 1964 world and Canadian curling champions, won their first of the tournament, a 3-4 decision over the northern Ontario high school entry skipped by youthful Bob Ash of Kirkland Lake.

Today's morning round sees Northern Ontario against Manitoba, Saskatchewan versus Ontario, and Alberta a meeting P.E.I. and B.C. playing the U.S.

Cameron and Richardson engaged in a real sawoff in their third-round match when Richardson's final stone, in a take-out effort, nudged the island rock into Saskatchewan's shot rock, giving P.E.I. the victory.

Cameron counted a big two in the ninth to take a 4-3 lead but Richardson had a guard around his shot rock in the 10th end. Cameron's first stone went through the house and Richardson drew in another guard to give him three in a line in front of the button.

Then Cameron set the stage for Richardson's take-out attempt when he drew to the inside rock and left the Saskatchewan rink counting just one.

Rather than send the match into extra ends, Richardson attempted a dead-on shot that would have sent the island rock out of the house. But his stone was wide and just nudged the island rock into his own shot rock and the match was over.

It's October

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—The 1968 Olympic Games have been tentatively set for Oct. 12-27, sources close to the Mexican Olympic committee said Monday.

Weather experts were consulted on the best time for the Olympiad.

Marshall Surprises His New Employers

CALGARY (UPI)—Freddie Marshall, quarterback for the unbeaten Arkansas Razorbacks, who announced in Memphis Tuesday night he would sign with the Rams for a $1,000 bonus and $10,000-a-year contract if he makes the club, caught general manager Rogers Lebew and scout Jess Thompson by surprise.

Marshall was placed on the Stampeders negotiation list only a week ago, when Thompson made him an offer. The club has not spoken with him since.

Marshall's performance in the Cotton Bowl earned him two other professional offers, but he apparently turned them down. At five feet, 11 inches and 188 pounds, Marshall was a defensive back until this season, when he made the transition to quarterback. He led Arkansas to an unbeaten season and a No. 2 ranking among U.S. college teams. Marshall is rated as a capable roll-out passer with good mobility.

Drudgery Involved

Amateurs Could Help Sports Fishery Research

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—With scientists at a symposium on sport fishing agreeing there's a dearth of knowledge on the topic, one economist wants to see amateur anglers "put to work" aiding the professionals.

Professor A. D. Scott of the University of British Columbia noted the help amateurs provide in astronomy, ornithology, meteorology and other sciences.

"Why couldn't fishermen help biologists? They could collect water samples, report on levels, interview visiting fishermen."

Other speakers at the three-day symposium of biologists and economists on the economic aspects of sport fishing agreed the fishermen, not the fish, should be the ones emphasized.

Dr. P. A. Larkin, director of the Fisheries Research Board station at Nanaimo, said the papers heard to date "show an emphasis on the social aspects" of the sport fishing problem.

"It may well be that the world would be a better place to live in if everyone went fishing . . . or a better place because of sport fishermen—liars that they may be."

Expanding this theme, he said sport fishing took "virtually no skill, anyone can do it." There was a high element of luck and "the fellow with the least experience and the least expensive tackle can catch the best fish."

Dr. Larkin and other speakers agreed it was important to know a lot about the fisherman—where he fishes and why?

In preserving the sport fishing environment "you preserve what many other outdoor activities . . . future generations may appreciate our preservation for entirely different reasons," Dr. Larkin said.

Dr. L. A. Walford, director of the Atlantic Laboratory of the U.S. department of the Interior at Highlands, N.J., said his country has used amateurs in its programs "since the beginning."

"The work involves a certain amount of drudgery but some students and housewives come to the laboratories and work gradually through the years."

A number of anglers helped with tagging, "including sharks along the Atlantic Coast. . . that's a rather slow business, tagging a eight-foot shark."

Amateur skindivers had been organized into a "kind of underwater Audubon Society, only they're fish watchers." It was difficult to identify species underwater.

Professionals were lowered in metal cages into the ocean because of the shark threat and because "it's hard to get biologists."

Professor Scott summed up the research needs the scientists had expressed after two days discussion on the sport-fish topic and the questions that must be answered:

WHAT ARE MOTIVES?
—What makes people fish?
—What are their motives and the cost factors?
—What is the quality of this resource (does an area with a higher success ratio draw more fishermen)?
—What is the cost of the various levels of quality of fishing?
—How much of a factor is so-called more visitors, same visitors more frequently, length of stay?
—What are fishermen's incomes, occupations and how does this relate to the distance they'll travel to fish?

How does fishing compare as a resource in multi-purpose bodies of water (dams, irrigation, power, pulp mills, logging) and how can preservation of fish and "co-existence be worked out?"

Dr. N. H. Morse, head of the economics and sociology department at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., expressed some puzzlement at use of the terms "value and benefit-costs."

"It has been said of economists that if you laid them all end to end they'd still point in all directions," he said.

Snow Threatens Deer, Elk Herds

Game branch officials are apprehensive now, but not unduly concerned yet about a possible big kill of Vancouver Island deer and elk because of heavy snow conditions.

If heavy snow conditions continue until the end of January and into February they will be seriously concerned for welfare of the game animals. "Even then, what can we do?" says assistant game director Don Robinson. "With a quarter million deer spread out in all the isolated parts of the island, we can't feed them all."

At Youbou, residents have joined forces to feed deer in their back yards.

The Cheerful Cherry

By M. V. CHERNUT, FRAS

So far, in this current series of articles on the care of Christmas gift houseplants, I have outlined details of the year-round culture of the poinsettia, the cyclamen and the houseplant azalea. Today I think we might discuss a cheerful little pot plant, the Jerusalem Cherry, valued for its pretty berries and its bright green leaves—the blossoms are small and not very attractive.

First, I should tell you that the plant does NOT come from Jerusalem, nor is it a cherry. Its native home is the island of Madagascar, off the northwest coast of Africa, and it is a member of the potato-tomato-pepper family. The attractive little "cherries" are poisonous, although not violently so, and for this reason special care should be taken in homes where there are small children to keep the plant out of reach of inquisitive fingers.

Every year in the post-Christmas season a number of readers write to me complaining that the leaves and berries of a gift Jerusalem Cherry are dropping off.

Too much warmth is the most common cause of this trouble, although a lack of atmospheric humidity will set up the same disturbing symptoms. Another cause of leaf-dropping is a gas leak in the house, for like all members of the tomato family, it is abnormally sensitive to the slightest trace of gas fumes.

The plant does best in a room a little on the chilly side—ideally around 55 degrees—with plenty of fresh air, sunshine during the winter months and light shade in summer. Unlike the azalea, this little shrub will tolerate ordinary tap water and will need daily watering until after it has dropped its berries. It is best not to give it any plant food while it is carrying berries, but during all other periods of active growth a little fertilizer may be given in its water every two weeks.

With the air in our homes so terribly dry at this season of the year, it is a good idea to compensate for this lack of atmospheric humidity by spraying the leaves and the berries daily with a fine mist of plain water, shifting the plant to a spot where the window drapes and curtains won't get water-spotted from the spray.

The dropping of the berries signals the approach of the Jerusalem Cherry's resting period, and at this stage watering should be reduced until the soil is not quite but almost as dry as a bone. A little pruning and shaping is called for during this semi-dormant period, otherwise the plant will become too big and ungainly next fall. A good plan is to cut back all the branches to within two buds or side shoots of its base.

In the spring, after all danger of frost is past, the plant should be given a summer holiday outdoors, either on a lightly shaded porch or sinking the pot up to its rim in the ground in a spot where it will receive morning sun only. You can step up the amount and frequency of watering at this stage, and when new leaves appear, resume feeding with liquid fertilizer every second week. If the leaves appear pale, add a very tiny pinch of Epsom salts to the water once a week until normal color is restored. The Jerusalem Cherry seems to need a little extra magnesium in its diet.

To get berries on your plant again, the little white blossoms must be pollinated. Insects will usually take care of this while the plant is outdoors; indoors, the centre organs of each blossom may be "tickled" with an artist's paint brush or a small swab, or you can spray the open blossoms with a tomato-setting hormone spray to produce seedless berries.

Incidentally, the Jerusalem Cherry is an easy plant to propagate, either from seeds received from the ripe berries or by slips taken during the annual pruning.

STAN DELAPLANE Had a Little Cross

Head-Bangers Maddening

A chill and rainy day outside the dormitory we call home. Why does a normal, healthy, happy child beat his head against the end of the bed?

Have got down the books on child behavior. No answer.

It is not anger. It is not frustration. He bangs his noggin methodically with every indication that he LIKES it. Thump! Thump! It sounds like a basketball bounced down an empty gymnasium.

It shakes the house. One of life's mysteries.

The head-banging is done with a rocking motion on hands and knees. He rocks back on his haunches. Launches himself forward. Thump!

Back. Forward. Bang! It is rhythmic. Done in four-four time.

Finally, the neighbors came to see me. They were gentle about it but they looked haggard.

They said: "We can't sleep nights."

They did not know it was his head. They thought he was beating a shoe on the wall.

I said: "Neither can I."

I meant that we were all in the same boat. Sympathy. However, they pointed out that it was MY child's head. And I couldn't think up a good argument.

My younger daughter started banging her head at about one year. She did not bang it on a bed. She banged it on the floor.

It was pure anger, however. Whenever she got mad, she simply dropped to her hands and knees—and bang!

At that time I was living in London and I consulted Mrs. Hawkins who came in to clean each morning.

She said: "My own daughter did the same. Bashed 'er head against the wall, she did. I said to 'er: 'Get on with it. Bash your head in.' She soon stopped, never fear."

This surely seemed the Spanish way to look at it. But a few weeks later I was in northern France, in Calvados, and a maid named Denise said:

"Ah, no, M'sieur! Do not let the little one hit her head!"

She said the French department stores sell a kind of forehead padding for moppets who bang their heads.

"You tie the padding on their heads until they get old enough to stop," said Denise.

The child gave Denise a dirty look, dropped to her knees and banged her head against the gravelled walk.

I could not find the French head pad—it was a very small town, and they said I would surely find it in Paris.

But before I could get to Paris, we went to Athens. The maid in the Athens hotel said it was a matter of diet. She advised giving the child a half glass of ritina wine. "To calm the nerves."

The child did not like ritina. She spat it out, dropped to her knees and banged her head thoroughly on the marble floor.

We then went to Spain where we were fortunate enough to find a maid who could anticipate a head thumping. She scooped the child up before she could do it.

This frustrated the moppet. She sneaked into closets and banged her head for no reason at all. I read all the books and was ready to bang MY head.

After a while she simply quit. Who knows why? She quit banging her head on the floor.

I said to the neighbors: "They just quit after a time."

They said: "How long does it usually take?"

I said: "About a year." Then I said: "I am going to move in a few weeks anyway." They brightened up immediately. And I have never had such good-neighbourly relations. "If there is anything we can do to help you move, etc., etc."

SHEILAH GRAHAM Lists Her 1965 Hopes

I Wish, I Wish, I Wish

NEW YORK (NANA)—What does a columnist wish for at the beginning of a new year? Professionally speaking of course. . . . Well, my first wish is that the studio strike threatened for the end of this month will not happen. Hollywood is just getting back to being a real centre of movie making. Its pictures are making money. A strike would ruin everything, as the last one did.

I wish that Judy Garland and Sid Luft will be able to settle their divorce without having to hurl scandalous charges at each other in court. Everyone loses this way, especially the children. . . . And the same in hearts and clubs for Marian Brande and Anna Karlin. People who once loved each other ought to be able to sit down quietly outside the courtroom and settle these heart-breaking matters. I think Marian should have some understanding of Anna's loneliness without her son. She should realize that her behavior is the barometer of whether she is a fit mother.

In 1965 I wish that Hugh O'Brian would stop saying that he would like to be married but can't find a girl to lead to the altar. The woods are full of them, and there must be one who would fit the adjectives. It's all right to remain a bachelor, of course. Just don't say you want to marry. It disappoints too many.

I wish that the George Seatts, who seemed so happy before George went to Europe and worked with Ava Gardner, would make up, for the sake of their family. . . . and for Ava, my New Year thought is that the step being to married life. . . . say day now, I can only wish him the six children he wants with her. And I have a hunch it won't be long for number three.

I wish that Joan Crawford would find herself another Alfred Steele. The late business magnate did much to release Joan from her fears—fears of flying, fear of facing an audience. They were happy. Joan is still a beautiful woman with much to give to the man she marries.

I don't have to wish for Warren Beatty to be a married man this year. He has decided this matter for himself. Of course he is not yet wed to Leslie Caron, but it certainly looks like he's going to be. . . . I would like Frank Sinatra to date girls of his own age, and that will be the year, instead of tender striplings like Mia Farrow who told me a bit more than I printed at that lunch with two 20th Century-Fox executives as witnesses to our conversation.

I would wish for Robert Redford to show more gratitude in 1965. During the last years, a press agent worked hard to help put him over. Mostly for no pay. But when Robert became successful in Barefoot in the Park, in which he was excellent, he hired a different press agent, and paid, of course.

I would like Maybel Mills to find a magic formula for dieting and then to pass it on to me. . . . I would like Audrey Hepburn to find the same thing in reverse. She is too thin and simply cannot gain weight no matter what she eats.

I would like Carroll Baker to be the great big star her talent as an actress proved she was in Baby Doll. She will have a chance in Harlow. . . . And finally I wish that Billy Wilder will revert to films like Some Like It Hot, and stop trying to make a fast buck with pictures like Kiss Me, Stupid, which is not only dirty, but boring.

DR. STUART ROSENBERG on Lesson of Genesis

Man Is Nothing and Everything

"In the beginning God . . ." Genesis is not a book of science; it is a book of wisdom. The author does not describe the scientific process of creation. He is not concerned with the fact of creation; he proclaims without embarrassment that the world did not spring into being chaotically or accidentally without plan, design or purpose.

"In the beginning God . . ." For the spiritual man all of life flows from this resounding, joyful and exciting affirmation. Given God, and the world with all of its sorrows, its travail and pain may still have meaning. Without God, nothing is truly significant; even our victories, triumphs and glories are empty and hollow.

You cannot prove creation in the test-tubes of a laboratory.

Indeed, no scientist worthy of the name would admit that it is possible to disprove it. Strange as it may seem the profound man of science is the most potential believer in creation.

No scientist ever "saw" an electron; nor does he think that anyone ever could. Yet, nothing is more "real" to a scientist than an electron.

Most of us would call a table or a chair real because we can see or touch them. But a scientist knows that the table and chair are not real, even though they can be seen or touched.

The table and the chair, to a scientist, are nothing more than a swirling net of electric charges which he calls electrons.

The author of Genesis is concerned — vitally concerned — with the answer to that question. He is not specific regarding how man developed from the lower species. Silence reigns on that issue; for the author is not a scientist. Genesis says only that man was created at the top of the scale, after all other species had been formed.

But what does He say? "God made man out of the dust of the earth." Here, in the language of symbolism, are imbedded two ideas—not facts—that matter supremely. Man is nothing; he is like dust.

Physically he declines, erodes and decays; for he is eminently finite. But man was formed as the crown and the pinnacle of all creation.

The astronomer asks: What is man? And he answers: "He is but a speck of dust in a far-flung universe whose forces dominate and control his life." The biologist asks: What is man? And he answers: "He is but one step removed from his cousins of the animal kingdom."

To which, the man of spirit, basing his life upon the intimations of Genesis, can reply: "Man may be these things, yet, please remember: Man is also the astronomer, also the biologist."

"He is like dust; but because he has been created to strive and to search, to rule and to serve, a divine spark animates him. Physically he is nothing; spiritually he can be something."

And what is most important: when we realize that spiritually we can become something, that there is plan and purpose to life, we no longer remain animals but can become men.

Kennedy's Mountain

Bearing above its discoverers, members of National Geographic Society expedition of 1905, in Mount Kennedy, 13,900-foot Canadian peak on Yukon-Alaska border. Peak, which honors late U.S. president, was named after it was discovered that lower peak named earlier was overshadowed by higher mountains.—(AP)

Kennedy Honor

Family Sends Thanks

OTTAWA (CP)—The mother and the widow of President John F. Kennedy have written Prime Minister Pearson to express appreciation to the Canadian government for naming a mountain peak on the Yukon-Alaska border for Mr. Kennedy. Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy also expressed deep appreciation for Canada's "extraordinarily generous contribution" of $100,000 for the John F. Kennedy Library at Cambridge, Mass.

CHERISHED DREAM

"This would have meant so very much to the president — to know that the people of Canada had chosen to perpetuate his memory by honoring him in their own country — and then in supporting the library which was one of his most cherished dreams," Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy said.

The late president's mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, said all members of the Kennedy family were "deeply moved by this testimonial to our late son, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy and by the expressions of affection, esteem and respect which have been bestowed upon him."

Windsors Ready For Fling

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Duke of Windsor, feeling fit and looking it, flew back to New York Wednesday nibbling southern-fried quail and sipping champagne. He plans to rest a month before he and his duchess go to Europe for the social whirl of April in Paris.

The 70-year-old former British monarch, still recuperating from a delicate abdominal arterial operation, felt so spry on the jet flight from Houston, Tex., that he went to the cockpit of the plane and chatted with Capt. A. L. Lohrke, the pilot.

They'll Study Urban Renewal

Ald. A. W. Toone and city officials James Bramley and Anthony De Jong will attend the urban renewal symposium in Vancouver this weekend.

"This is a subject of vital importance to us," said Ald. Toone Wednesday. "and I think we should know all there is to know about policy and procedure."

The study is being conducted by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and the federal government will be represented by the Postmaster of Canada, John R. Nicholson.

Luxury Liner Rams Barge

NEW YORK (AP)—The luxury liner Nieuw Amsterdam rammed an anchored railway barge in pre-dawn darkness in the narrows off Staten Island, the U.S. Coast Guard reported. There apparently were no injuries.

Medicare Without Fuss

Accepted by All in Scandinavia

By BRACK CURRY
STOCKHOLM (AP)—There are no separate medical plans for the aged in Scandinavia. All ages receive benefits, but the elderly do not pay insurance premiums.

Take an 80-year-old Swedish widow living on a modest pension. When she calls or visits a doctor or hospital the cost to her will be minimal—no matter whether she suffers from vague aches and pains or must undergo a major operation.

Her choice of a doctor is free. She pays the doctor. She presents the receipt to a health insurance office and is reimbursed for three-fourths of the fee in most cases. A normal consultation costs the equivalent of $1 or $2 out of her own pocket. Free hospital care is available in the wards of public hospitals. This includes free operations, medical treatment, laboratory tests, blood transfusions, x-ray examinations and drugs. She may pay $7 a day for a private room and $4 for a semi-private room—but still receive all treatment free. If a patient needs a private room for medical reasons there is no charge.

An ambulance is free. If an ambulance is needed the cost of transportation to the nearest public hospital is repaid in full. Fare from the hospital and far to and from a doctor are repaid in part.

A reduced price is paid for any medicines prescribed.

A doctor may prescribe vitamin injections for the elderly widow and send a nurse to her home twice a week for these.

She pays 40 cents for each visit. The cost of health insurance is shared by the self-employed, employers and the government.

Any Swede who is 67, or who earlier receives a pension, is exempt from these contributions. With all this, there are problems. There is a shortage of hospital beds, especially for the long-term treatment of the aged. Many areas have a critical shortage of doctors and nurses.

In Denmark, if an older has no income or fortune beyond his monthly pension, the only expenses for medical care are contributions toward national health insurance. For old people these average $1.70 monthly.

Norway's comprehensive medical care program includes free hospital care as long as it is needed. Surgery, x-rays, all medicines and examinations—in short, all care by the hospital staff—are paid in full.

For consultation and treatment by a family doctor or by a specialist, the patient pays about 30 per cent of the fee for most services.

Denmark has had a state-organized and state-financed medical care for the aged since 1953. Medical care for the old in Norway was incorporated in a public, non-profit health insurance plan as far back as 1911. Since 1956, all Norwegians have been covered by this plan. Medical care for the aged is no political issue in Scandinavia. It is accepted by all, including the medical profession.

Suspect Leads Police on Gem Safari

MIAMI (UPI)—One of the suspects in the theft of the priceless 563-carat Star of India sapphire and 21 other gems from the Museum of Natural History in New York Wednesday night led a safari of New York detectives here in an attempt to recover the gems. If all goes according to plan, the gems were expected to be returned to New York today. The suspect, Allen Kuhn, 26, was given special court permission to leave New York. He immediately boarded a plane for Miami with four detectives and an assistant district attorney in tow. Kuhn, who hoped to get a lighter sentence if convicted, needed the special court permission to leave the New York jurisdiction. He had been slated to go to jail in lieu of heavy bail pending trial on the indictment in the gem thefts. Kuhn was spotted Wednesday night in his bayfront 15th floor apartment here. He and an unidentified man, believed to be a detective, ducked out of the apartment, ran down a corridor and disappeared. Kuhn, Jack (Muri the Surf) Murphy and Roger Clark, all of Miami, are accused in the Oct. 31 theft of the Star of India, the De Long ruby and some $400,000 worth of jewels in all. None of the gems have been recovered. Actress Eva Gabor Tuesday accused Murphy and Kuhn of being the men who robbed her of a $25,000 ring at Miami Beach last winter.

Stalin Hid from War

MOSCOW (UPI) — The late Soviet dictator Josef Stalin went into hiding the first four days of the Soviet-German war in 1941 and refused to see anyone or make any decisions on the conduct of the war, it was disclosed Wednesday.

This and other disclosures on the strange behavior of the Soviet commander-in-chief were made by historian Ivan Maisky, wartime Soviet ambassador to London.

For four days beginning June 21, 1941, Maisky said, he sat in his London embassy office awaiting instructions from Moscow, but neither he nor other Soviet diplomats abroad received a word of guidance from their capital.

Because Stalin locked himself up in his office and refused to talk to anybody, the first address to the nation was delivered by then foreign minister Vyacheslav Molotov, Maisky said. It was made hours after German troops crossed the Soviet border.

Maisky, in a new chapter of his memoirs published by the monthly magazine Novy Mir, also confirmed what has long been known to historians — that Stalin had ignored early British and American warnings that the Germans were about to attack Russia.

The Soviet diplomat sharply criticized Stalin for ignoring such Western warnings and for his failure to prepare the country to meet Hitler's onslaught which cost the Red Army enormous initial reverses.

Immediately after the German attack Maisky, although lacking instructions from Moscow, took personal responsibility for approaching the British government with an offer of alliance, he said.

The former ambassador said the late British press magnate, Lord Beaverbrook, showed immediate understanding of the situation and acted as intermediary between the Russians and Prime Minister Churchill.

Maisky also accused Churchill of bad faith in delaying the promised opening of a second front in Europe to relieve the hard-pressed Red Army.

Chamber Chooses Easterner

Earl E. Dicknoether of Belleville, Ont., has been chosen as the new manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Appointment of the 33-year-old father of three children was announced Wednesday by chamber president David Lawson.

The new manager, expected to take up his duties Feb. 1, succeeds John Coppinger who left earlier to take up a similar post in Winnipeg.

Mr. Dicknoether was chosen from 52 applicants from across Canada.

Past experience includes five years as manager of the Belleville chamber, secretary-treasurer of the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange, chairman of the Highlands Tourist Association and manager of the Lindsay Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Dicknoether's hobbies are fishing, swimming and hunting.

Campbell River

Convict Gone, Not Forgotten

CAMPBELL RIVER — In all the trouble caused by the weather, the RCMP haven't forgotten about 23-year-old Donald William Boch.

Police said Wednesday they are still searching for the young inmate who escaped late Friday from the minimum-security Lakeview forestry prison camp near here.

But they added they feel he is "out of this area" now.

SIX MONTHS

Boch was serving six months for false pretences when he slipped out during the showing of a film whose title has not been disclosed. His disappearance was discovered when a head count was held after the movie ended.

Police indicated they felt there was little chance Boch had been caught in the weather and frozen to death.

CAMP CLOTHES
At last report, Boch was wearing camp clothing—a red and black plaid windbreaker, green coveralls and ankle-length rubber boots.

He is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Labor to Elect

Peck Challenges Council President

The Victoria Labor Council president's post held by R. C. Bourrie for the last eight years was challenged Wednesday night.

Nominated to oppose Mr. Bourrie was C. A. Peck, the council's second vice-president.

Mr. Bourrie was not present during nominations but it was believed he would allow his name to stand.

Further nominations and the election of officers will be held at council's next meeting Jan. 20.

Other nominations: First vice-president, E. T. Staley; William Isbister, C. A. Peck; second vice-president, C. A. Peck; J. F. Lister, John Nicol; secretary-treasurer, A. W. Tuone.

Snow, Slippery Streets

Weather Blamed As Three Injured

Heavy snowfall and slippery streets were blamed for accidents that sent three people to hospital Wednesday.

Doris Armstrong, 1708 Bay Street, slipped on an icy patch in the 1500 block Bay and was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken leg.

Mouth and knee injuries sent Joan Davies, 16, of 3308 Cedar Hill Road, to Royal Jubilee Hospital after a two-car crash at Blanshard and Broughton.

City police said a car driven by John Clarke, 79, of 1665 Fell, collided with the Clarke car. Pedestrian Richard Smith, 85, St. Joseph's Annex, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after he was hit by a car while crossing Blanshard at Humboldt Street.

He was taken in by the driver of the car, David McLellan, 205 Douglas Street.

Fire Chief's Post Still Undecided

Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Butherford's future is still undecided—at least until next week.

The chief's six-month probationary period ended Dec. 31 and council must now confirm or deny his permanent appointment.

At Monday's inaugural meeting council decided to refer the matter to the standing fire committee headed by Coun. Gregory Croft.

Chairman Cook hopes to call a meeting sometime next week.

China Protests Intrusions

PEKING (Reuters) — China has strongly protested to India against a series of "new and grave intrusions" by Indian troops along the China-Sikkim border, the New China news agency reported.

DOMESTIC METAL

Pewterware was used by the Romans in England more than 2,000 years ago.

Tot's Trip Short, Costly

BURNABY (UPI) — A three-year-old girl drove through the front window of a women's clothing store in her father's car, causing some $2,000 damage, mostly to the store.

Lisa Lawson, daughter of Ed Lawson, president of the Teamsters' Joint Council of B.C., got behind the wheel while the car was parked with engine running at a shopping centre.

She threw the automatic shift into reverse, and backed up 100 yards along the centre's mall, jumped a sidewalk, and smashed into the store.

Lisa, uninjured, commented, "Daddy, now we won't be able to drive home."

Businessmen Go to Cabinet

A 10-member delegation from Vancouver Island's Associated Chambers of Commerce will present 21 resolutions to the provincial cabinet at 11 a.m. today. Group president Sam Lane of Esquimalt will lead the delegation.

It will include Cliff Laver of Courtenay, Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni, Edward Stoyan, Dave Jones and Richard Bond of Nanaimo, Bob Wright and Walter Dodsworth of Oak Bay and Bernie Cox and Pat Frumento of Victoria.

Executive members of the association met for almost four hours in Nanaimo Wednesday to map out plans for the cabinet meeting.

One of the major resolutions urges the government to launch a crash program to push the Island Highway through to Port Hardy—about 90 miles north of the present Kelsey Bay terminus.

Another deals with curbing air and water pollution.

Illegality?

Sidney 'Deal' Examined

Municipal affairs inspectors are conducting a preliminary investigation into illegality charges involving Sidney village commission.

A department spokesman said Tuesday results of the initial probe will determine whether a full-scale public inquiry should be called.

The probe arose over a charge by Commissioner Andries Ross at a December commission meeting that an "illegal deal" was made in connection with the recent construction of the Sidney sewage extension project.

Motel Out, Junction In

Province Seeks Property

By GARY OAKES

After killing a motor hotel proposal at the Douglas-Trans-Canada junction the highways department is now trying to buy the property.

A department spokesman disclosed Wednesday negotiations are underway to buy an eight-lot parcel of land near the intersection from Bert Savage, 1407 Fairfield.

If the sale goes through, the spokesman added, part or all of the land will be used for future expansion of the key arterial junction.

Mr. Savage planned a $360,000 motor hotel on the property but his rezoning application was rejected by the highways department.

Realtor J. Bonar Law of Pemberton Holmes Ltd., representing Mr. Savage, confirmed that negotiations were underway.

DECLINED TO BUY
Before Mr. Savage acquired the property was offered to the highways department which at that time declined to purchase.

But expansion plans apparently triggered the recent decision to negotiate for the property.

Plans for the junction may depend on the results of a traffic survey expected to be released this month.

But the department spokesman confirmed some action will be taken to eliminate the street level railway crossings.

BOTTLE DRIVE
The 5th (Oaklands) Scouts will hold a bottle drive starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the area bounded by Shelbourne and Cook, Bay Street and North Dairy Road.

Boundary Probe

'Forthwith'

A boundary commission will be established "forthwith" to study how much of View Royal will be amalgamated with Esquimalt, it was announced Wednesday.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said there is no doubt the recent plebiscite in Esquimalt and petition in View Royal will result in a merger.

It is proposed that the peninsula along Portage Inlet become part of the municipality.

FORMAL AVENUE
But the minister said he has received informal representations regarding the exact location of the new boundary.

"This commission will give all interested parties a formal avenue for making known their views before a decision is made," he said.

The three-man commission will consist of Esquimalt Coun. George Argyle, Albert Beasley representing View Royal fire protection district and an official of the municipal affairs department.

Year's Biggest Crowd

Blood Donors Pack Red Cross Clinic

Irene

Victoria Red Cross Blood donor or clinic officials are jumping for joy after the largest crowd of donors in more than a year attended the clinic Wednesday.

A total of 515 pints of blood was taken as 350 regular donors, 90 new donors and 75 donors from outside Victoria turned up to give blood.

'NOW HAVE HOPE'
"We had to turn a large number away because the girls were exhausted," a spokesman for the clinic said, "but we are very grateful to the people of Victoria. Our Victoria and Vancouver banks were dry, and now we have hope."

Seagoing personnel of the navy's Pacific Command will donate blood to the Red Cross in the gymnasium of HMCS Venture from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. today. More than 600 pints are expected.

Belmont Building To Be Sold

The federal government expects to sell the 53-year-old Belmont Building on Government Street within two years.

Sale of the eight-storey building will depend on completion of the proposed National Employment Service building on Vancouver Street between Pandora and Johnson.

A government spokesman said Wednesday tenders for the new building will probably be called within the next month. The three-storey structure will cost between $800,000 and $1,000,000 and will house income tax offices as well as the NES.

BUILT IN 1912
Built in 1912, the Belmont Building, 805 Government, was purchased by the federal government during the war for the air force.

Later it served as quarters for various government offices and today it houses the veterans affairs, income tax, fisheries, NES auditors, national defence inspector, trade and commerce inspectors, mines and technical surveys purchasing agent, transport's radio branch and health and welfare's food and drug branch.

RENOVATION COSTLY
Reynolds china shop, has been in the building since 1929.

The government spokesman estimated it would cost about $800,000 to properly renovate the building and as a result it will be sold as crown surplus for its property value.

Many federal departments now in the Belmont will fill empty offices on the second floor of the Customs House and the fourth floor of the Post Office.

NES auditors are expected to remain in the Belmont, while fisheries may set up new offices in the government-owned Mahat building on Wharf Street.

Veterans affairs will take up most of the vacant space in the Customs House, while the other departments will move to the Post Office.

Metal Firm Hit Again

The second break-in in two weeks occurred overnight Tuesday at Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. Ltd., 343 Tyee Road. Some weights used on a scale were reported by the company to be missing, in addition to damage done to a billing machine. Theft and damage cost about $100.

Sewer Survey Agreement

Foundation Now Laid For Mini-Metro Plan

By IAN STREET

The foundations of mini-metro have been laid with the signing of the Capital Region sewer survey agreement, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

"At the moment there aren't too many shakes on the roof," the minister said, "but we're getting there."

Representatives of six municipalities signed the document setting up the sewer survey at a special meeting in the legislative buildings Wednesday.

CLOSED SESSION

Mr. Campbell signed on behalf of the unorganized territories.

After the formal signing ceremony, where photographs were permitted, the mini-metro study group went into closed session to hear an outline of proposed amendments to the Municipal Act.

The changes, to be presented in the forthcoming session, will permit two or more municipalities to join together in the provision of services on a mini-metro basis.

DRAFT FORM

Mr. Campbell said following the meeting that the legislation "is still very much in draft form."

"We went through the draft but did not go out of our way to seek reaction," the minister said.

"There were one or two comments and the local representatives pointed out one or two difficulties which could arise out of what we propose."

VALUABLE IDEAS

Mr. Campbell said the local suggestions, together with those offered by UBCM executive on mini-metro, have been valuable in framing legislation for mini-metro.

All the points raised will be taken into consideration in framing the final legislation for the session beginning Jan. 21.

FOURTH MOVE
It is the fourth move in 22 years and will be the first time all staffers are together in the same building.

Heaney Cartage and Storage Ltd. is charging about $2,500 to pack and move 60,000 to 70,000 pounds of data and related equipment.

COSTLY EQUIPMENT
More than $100,000 worth of equipment is being moved into the spacious building but the most valuable material is the irreplaceable data—notes and records collected and compiled during the past 22 years.

Five men are working all this week to pack the merchandise, and another dozen will take most of next week to move and unpack it at the other end.

FEBRUARY OPENING
Official opening of the three-storey, $2,500,000 building has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 15, and senior government officials are expected to attend.

Dr. Ray Foster, head of the forest pathology section, says it will be the first laboratory in Canada where there is a physical joining of the various sections of the forestry department.

RESEARCH LAB
It will be called the forestry department's forest research laboratory and will include entomology and pathology, soil and fire research, tree pathology, plant studies and administration.

Research staffers are moving some of the delicate scientific equipment themselves in the midst of the organized confusion these days.

But peace will return in a couple of weeks as researchers get back to the serious business of studying trees.

SERVICE CHIEFS INSPECT CENTRE
Rear-Admiral Michael Stirling, flag officer Pacific coast, and Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer Pacific, were flown to Vancouver by RCAF helicopter Wednesday for a tour of the RCAF's Rescue Co-ordination Centre.

The clatter of jackhammers on Friday will give notice that an idea based on goodwill is moving out of the dream stage into the realm of fact.

For four years officials of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped and their sponsoring Rotarians have seen the need for a roomy, well-equipped building to carry on the work of rehabilitation among the crippled and the handicapped.

When Mayor R. B. Wilson holds a jackhammer against a rock face on Friday it will mark the beginning of work on the building.

SECOND FLOOR LATER
The mayor will be assisted by Dr. Robert Stark, Rotary Club president, and Dr. R. J. Wride, Goodwill vice-president.

The $500,000 building of 33,000 square feet will be constructed that a second storey may be added later. It will consist of two main divisions, workshop and rehabilitation centre. The workshop, according to Goodwill acting manager, Frazier McNeill, will contain clothing, furniture, shoe and electrical repair shops, a laundry, dry-cleaning and pressing shop and storage space.

Testing Station Returning

The province's mobile vehicle testing station will be in Greater Victoria again for two periods this month. It was announced Wednesday.

The salt will operate at the Town and Country shopping centre from Jan. 12 to 15, and at the Esquimalt sports centre from Jan. 19 to 22.

Swartz Bay

Docks Ready By June

A new ferry dock at Swartz Bay terminal is scheduled for completion by June of this year, general manager M. F. Aldous said Wednesday.

Tenders for the first stage of a program that will double the operating capacity of the North Saanich terminal were opened Wednesday in the premier's office.

LOWEST BID
Lowest of three bids was tendered by Laing Construction and Equipment for $642,590. Other bids were by Fraser River Pile Driving Co. Ltd., New Westminster, for $695,736; and Pacific Pile Driving Co. Ltd., Victoria, for $798,220.

The contract, expected to be awarded next Monday or Tuesday, will cover construction of a new operating dock and relocation and reconstruction of the existing layover berth and Gulf Islands ferry dock.

NEW QUEEN
The work must be completed by early June when the new Queen of Barnaby is delivered to the ferry authority. Site preparation has been underway for some time.

The new vessel will go into service on the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay run and another ship will be shifted to the southern mainland route.

When the new ferry dock goes into operation and a fifth ship is available the summer schedule is expected to be changed to include intermittent half-hourly service during peak periods.

In the rehabilitation section of the centre will be a health services and equipment for therapy. A part-time doctor will be on hand and there will be quarters for personnel and office staff.

In addition there will be a cafeteria, chapel and recreation area in the building.

The building will be located at Bay and Wilson streets.

Goodwill Enterprises was started in 1956 by Fred Blakeney and taken over a year later by the Rotary Club.

A handful of men is packing 22 years of toil into hundreds of cardboard boxes this week.

Next week they'll cart the boxes—about 2,000 in all—away from the fourth floor of the Post Office and the second floor of the Customs House.

At the same time the 80-old members of Victoria's federal forestry staff and their equipment will move into plush new quarters at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Our Man In The Kitchen

—HYMAN GOLDBERG—

Man in the seafood restaurant looked up from the menu. "Tell me," he said to the waiter, "have you got frogs' legs?" The waiter shook his head sadly. "No," he said sadly. "It's my flat feet make me walk this way."

What annoys us in many seafood restaurants is some waiter or a captain of waiters who tries to put an apron or a bib on us when we sit down, just as though we'd come there for a shave and a haircut. It always leads to an argument, because we don't like to wear funny clothes, especially with funny sayings on them, which a lot of these places have on their aprons or bibs for customers.

A friend of ours named Debs Myers, a former collegiate light-weight wrestling champion of the Midwest, once won a match against a waiter and a captain of waiters at a seafood joint who tried to put one of those bibs on him. "I'll wear it," growled Debs amiably. "Only if you give me a funny hat to go with it, and a horn to blow."

LOBSTER WENBURG

Two pounds cooked lobster meat, or so-called lobster tails, 4 tablespoons (½ stick) butter, 1 cup dry sherry, 2 cups light cream, 2 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brandy, ½ teaspoon paprika.

No, we didn't make a mistake, calling it lobster wenburg instead of lobster newburg. The way you've always seen and heard it called. (When we were a boy, in the Bronx, everybody, including us, used to say, "We did it extra," when we meant "purposely." Well, we did it extra.)

It used to be called lobster wenburg, because a man by that name (first name Louis) described a lobster dish he'd had in South America to a famous restaurateur in New York, and the restaurateur concocted this dish according to Wenburg's description and named it in his honor. Well, one night, not long after the end of the War Between the States, Mr. Wenburg, who was a rich millionaire and quite a sporty guy, apparently, took much more spirituous beverage than his system really required, and got into a brawl in this man's restaurant, so he had Mr. Wenburg tossed out and changed the name of the dish to lobster newburg. Well, we think that a social error happened 99 years ago should be forgotten by now, and forgiven, don't you? So we are starting a nationwide campaign to go back to calling it lobster wenburg.

What you do is saute the lobster meat, broken up in small chunks, in the hot butter. (Lobster tails, which come to our market only frozen, are not really lobsters, of course; they're crayfish from South America or, maybe from South Africa, but they're pretty good, though not quite as delicate as real lobster.)

Well, saute the lobster meat in the butter for about 5 minutes. Add the sherry, and simmer it over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat the cream into the egg yolks, add some of the sauce from the pan to the creamy egg mixture, stir and pour the pan slowly, stirring the contents of the pan viciously all the while. Add the salt, stir, then the brandy, and remove from the heat. Sprinkle it all with the paprika and serve it on triangles of toasted white bread, or maybe, toasted muffins. This is a lovely party thing to serve to 8 or 10 people, and it is a fine one to do in a chafing dish, right out in the open in front of a lot of jolly people.

Cantonese Style Hot Pot Indescribable Taste Treat

By A. C. MILLER
Copley News Service

HONG KONG — When the weather turns cool in Hong Kong, the appetites turn strange.

The relatively simple and easy-to-prepare dishes of the hot summer give way to more involved meals that frequently demand hours to eat — not to mention the time to prepare. And the variety of foods available ranges from the exotic to the absurd.

But the conventional in Chinese cuisine rarely is conventional. So it was with a good deal of anticipation that I set out with several Chinese friends one evening recently in search of "hot pot."

Three kinds of "hot pot" can be found in Hong Kong: Mongolian, Northern Chinese and Cantonese.

The Mongolian and Northern Chinese "hot pot" (the utensil) is a small stove with a conical chimney which burns gas, wood or charcoal. Heat rises up the center of the stove and the cooking part is a donut-shaped pot that fits around the chimney.

"Hot pot" (the meal) Mongolian style is a stew made from various vegetables and meats.

Northern Chinese style uses a soup stock into which the vegetables and very thin slices of meat and seafood are dipped and cooked.

Cantonese "hot pot" differs not only in ingredients but in the cooking utensil as well. Usually there is a small gas stove on which a large bowl-shaped pot is placed. Water is used as the base with vegetables and chunks of seafood and meat being held in the boiling water with chopsticks or in small baskets for easier retrieving.

INITIATED

My friends, being Cantonese, decided that I should be initiated into the ranks of "hot pot" enthusiasts by starting with the Cantonese style.

These and a half hours later—that is how long it took to finish the meal—they had won a new recruit to the "hot pot" brigade.

A seemingly endless parade of plates had marched onto our table . . . slices of beef, pork, liver, octopus, squid, garoupa, whole and huge oysters, vegetables and Chinese breads.

The pot was boiling feverishly as we moved through the plates of meats, each using his own chopsticks to cook his own tidbits in the communal pot. Earlier we had made our own sauces, consisting of a raw egg base and myriad seasonings, into which the cooked meats were dipped.

TWO HOURS

After nearly two hours, when the plates were becoming bare and the dinner was an obvious success, one fellow leaned back in his chair, patted his stomach and smiled.

"Well, that's the first course," he said. "Ready to start the next one?"

I smiled in return, said nothing and immediately thought of turning green. But I did not.

When the next round began, I strangely regained my appetite even though I was sure I had eaten tons already. If nothing else, it seemed valid evidence that the worldwide esteem for Chinese cooking was well-deserved.

At last the meal did end, with soup, in the traditional Chinese fashion. And where did the soup come from? Of course, it was the broth in which we had been cooking all evening.

The taste? Indescribable.

Turkey Louf Called For Four Eggs

In the Sunday, Jan. 3 edition of the Daily Colonist Magazine section, there was an omission in Muriel Wilson's Thought for Food column.

The recipe for Turkey Louf should have included "four eggs beaten and added to the mixture."

DOUGH

One package fast rising yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, ½ cup scalded milk, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk, add butter, sugar and salt and let stand until lukewarm. Then add egg, yeast and about 1½ cups of the flour. Beat for about 2 minutes to blend. Stir in the rest of the flour gradually. Cover and let rise until double in bulk (this takes about an hour).

SPREAD

Half cup honey, ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ cup chopped nuts (optional), ½ cup raisins, 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Mix honey, butter and nuts and drop about ½ teaspoon into each of 24 greased muffin cups.

Roll out the raised dough to about ½ inch thickness. Spread the rest of the honey mixture over it and sprinkle raisins and cinnamon on top. Roll the dough up like a jelly roll and pinch the edges together. Slice into 24 pieces and place, cut side down, in muffin cups. Let rise until double in size (about an hour), then bake 12 to 15 minutes in 425°F oven.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Is it thoughtlessness, stupidity, cruelty, ignorance, or just plain noisiness, that makes people ask members of the family, "Was it cancer?"

My father had surgery a few days ago. The surgeon gave us bad news. We expected the worst but still we clung to the hope that all would be well. My mother is heartick and so am I. We are trying to be brave—and silent—but people won't let us. They keep badgering us with questions, pumping us for information.

Yesterday I received six telephone calls, all from people wanting to know details. I've been saying, "We are hoping for the best," because I don't wish to discuss it further. One caller said, "You might as well face facts. It will be easier later." Another caller said, "My mother died of cancer and I pity you. You'll go through plenty these next few months."

Why do people do this? How shall I deal with them? —NEAR THE EDGE.

Dear Near: People do this because they are thoughtless, stupid, cruel, ignorant, or nosy—or a combination of all five adjectives.

Real friends are supportive and available if you need them, but they don't push beyond the bounds of good taste by asking questions.

Crepes-hangers who feed on the misery of others are not friends. They are morbidly curious cliques.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago I had an important business appointment out of the city. I was dressed in my best suit and my wife was driving me to the railroad station to catch the train. She was wearing blue jeans.

We got a flat tire. I said to my wife, "Since I'm dressed in my best suit and you are in jeans, why don't you change the tire?" She replied, "You must be out of your head. I wouldn't think of it."

As we were arguing, a big-hearted farmer stopped and changed the tire for us. I tried to give him a few dollars for his trouble but he wouldn't accept it.

Do you think I was justified in making the suggestion, under the circumstances? (P.S. My wife is not a frail little flower. She is 5'6" and weighs 150 pounds.)—ARTY.

Dear Art: No man should ASK his wife to change a tire. If she volunteers, under special conditions, that's another story.

A great many women (myself included) would be useless in such an emergency. The piano-moving, tire changing types who can flip off the flat and slap on a new number just like that, are pretty special. Since your wife did not offer, you should have gone ahead on your own (and prayed for that farmer who DID arrive.)

Celery, Mint, Lime or Nile, The Color Must Be Green

By FAY HAMMOND
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK—The first report on the state of spring fashions from the New York couture group has us all out at the knees.

Hemlines rose to 2 inches above the knees as National Press Week's 44th seasonal schedule of style openings got under way in the Grand Ballroom of the Pierre Hotel.

The new skirt lengths (or should we say heights) are partially offset by easy to full widths, which should be comforting to women who prefer to be seated without double exposure.

Two happy exceptions to this rising trend are the long, floating evening gown and the demilongueur hems of after-five dresses that end 8 to 10 inches above the ankles.

Attention focused on such ups and downs throughout the collections presented by Bill Blass of Maurice Rentner, Ben Reig and Davidow. Otherwise, all is softness and sheer femininity from gently tailored suits, costumes, day dresses into the most gala aspects of fashion.

Everywhere the color is green — every graduation of green, from celery to mint to lime to grassy greens and the pastel we used to call Nile.

Typical Maurice Rentner suits with short, swinging skirts included one of lime green with a blue linen blouse, and a classic of red, white and blue French plaid wool with a red linen blouse. Both were shown with tiny matching baby capes under the chin.

White suitings are a favorite here. White quilted herringbone wool made a longer jacket model that was uncolored and thinly sashed. Beige and off-white printed wool fashioned the high-waisted costume coat shown over a white jersey dress, while the baby look was repeated in a theatre ensemble of green warp-printed taffeta, its coat gathered at the back under a deep yoke.

Hand-loomed knit dresses, one in aquamarine blue, the other in bone beige were slim and slightly gathered high under the bustline, then finished with short sleeves and prim little collars of white organdy.

Rentner designer Bill Blass also likes satin and lace for spring cocktail and dance dresses. His pink satin suit edged in black lace, a white satin dirndl-skirt and jacket costume with a black jersey bodice and hot-pink all-lace short evening dress with flounced hemline and a ruffled peplum marking off a high waist were particularly young and pretty.

Nostalgic, romantic and harder to get used to than the shortest skirts are those in between demilongueur dresses that you'd better be thin to wear. One of black chiffon had pleated white organdy ruffles falling over the hands and frilling a big fluffy collar.

Ben Reig's "suits and compositions" outlined mushroom-back jackets, boyish jackets, raglan sleeved shirt jackets, short, long and back-belted jackets over both dresses and skirts topped with silk overblouses. Enamel green mesh-chest worsted, lemon yellow tweed mesh, swirl-striped raspberry worsted and teal brown lombardy silk were just a few of the stunning fabrics and colors shown by this designer.

Reig's ruffles and flourishes, flounced long-bodice dresses of lace in colors like amber, enamel green, fiery red and black—all as lively and Spanish looking as Carmen, who obviously inspired them.

Navy has practically outmoded black and colors are light and lovely enough to keep the cleaners rich right through summer. Even Davidow's classic suits and top coats, which have become an international blend of Chanel and Davidow, come in creamy petal pinks, pale gold, baby blue and the palest of all greens called celery.

IODE faces moving day: Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., removes the plaque that has been on Lowther Avenue, Toronto, headquarters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire for the last 30 years. The 22-room house that has been the centre of the Order's activities will be demolished to make way for an apartment building. (CP Wirephoto)

PERSONAL MENTION

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes have issued invitations to a State Ball at Government House on Thursday evening, January 21.

Miss Canada to Visit Navy

Linda Douma, Miss Canada of 1965, has accepted an invitation to visit VU33, the RCN utility air squadron at Patricia Bay on Friday afternoon. Linda, who spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Douma, at Sidney, flew back to Toronto for a few days, returning to Sidney on Wednesday.

May the coming year be one of fulfillment for each member of your family in every way... this is our sincere desire as we pause to greet our many friends at the New Year.

Brassiere Holster for Guns

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — There's a brassiere holster for the fashion-conscious South African woman who packs a gun.

A Johannesburg manufacturer is marketing a harness, to be clipped to the bra beneath blouse or sweater, that will carry anything from a small automatic to a .38-calibre special. Interchangeable covers keep the color schemes right.

Prospective clients are told the holster fits snugly at the side and the bustline remains unchanged.

The sales campaign is directed at women who have to return home unescorted late at night and, though owing a gun, don't wish to use the standard belt or shoulder holster.

Almost every second white person in South Africa owns a firearm. Woman acquired guns for a number of reasons, but their main concern seems to be fear that at some time they may be attacked by one of the country's 11,000,000 blacks.

All they need for a licence is to fill in a form, giving some reason such as self-protection, and pay the equivalent 75 cents.

First Woman Co-Pilot

LONDON (AP) — Yvonne Pope, 34, who soon will be the first British woman to fly as co-pilot on a scheduled airline flight, predicts that women will one day be captains of airliners.

"After all, women make decisions every day of their lives, big decisions affecting their husbands, their homes and their children."

"In the air I don't feel any different from a man. For me flying is a vocation."

British United Airways said Mrs. Pope, a widow and mother of two, will fly to West Germany, probably Jan. 16, and thus become Britain's first woman pilot to fly on a scheduled service.

"On this flight she will be the co-pilot," said a spokesman, "and as such she will do her share of the flying."

As there is a shortage of male pilots in Britain, Mrs. Pope believes other women may follow her example. About a dozen other women are qualified to fly charter flights.

Mrs. Pope, a former stewardess, married a flying instructor, who taught her to fly.

She flew planes for Britain's ministry of civil aviation and for four years has been an air-traffic controller at Gatwick Airport.

"In the air, I've never met with any prejudice at all. The only prejudice I've met with is at my son's school. Other children simply won't believe that mummy is a pilot."

Officers Installed

Mrs. T. G. Sewell, re-elected president of Metropolitan United Church Women at the annual meeting was in the chair when Rev. A. E. King conducted the installation ceremony.

Other officers are Mrs. A. E. King, honorary president; Mrs. R. D. Sharrocks and Mrs. G. Howes, vice-presidents; Mrs. R. D. Bennett, recording secretary; Mrs. A. Erickson, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. H. White, treasurer.

Mrs. A. E. Acres reported all allocations were met showing 1964 as a successful year. Rev. E. Laura Butler took the devotional service.

Refreshments were served by the Silver Stars unit.

Roses and Freesias Carried on Bible

St. Mark's Church at Qualicum Beach was the scene of the recent marriage of Letitia Barbara Mary Ragan and Mr. Arthur Thomas Henry Saul. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Ragan, Bennett Road, Qualicum Beach and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saul, New Westminster.

Rev. William Hills officiated at the pretty afternoon wedding. Mrs. R. Lock was organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a street-length gown of white silk velvet with lace jacket. She wore a white floral headpiece and short veil and a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book topped with small bouquet of gold Tailsman roses and white freesias.

Miss Marie Klint as the bride's only attendant was in a red velvet, street-length dress. She wore a matching headpiece and carried white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Bill Rempel of Brackendale, B.C., was best man. Mr. Richard Ragan and Mr. Michael Ragan, bride's brothers, were ushers.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Harry Large at Harrison Lake the bride wore a yellow wool two-piece dress, which she made herself, and for a honeymoon trip to blue pill-box hat. Gold Tailsman roses were in her corsage. The newlyweds are now making their home at Squamish, B.C.

Margaret Visits Pub

Merriment in Galway

By DONAL O'HIGGINS
DUBLIN (UPI) Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, tramped through the woodlands of Birt Castle hunting for pheasant Wednesday in a change of pace from a night of merriment in a Galway pub.

The royal couple returned to the more formal program of their Irish holiday Wednesday morning after abandoning the castle dining room for a night out.

They dropped in on Paddy Burke's Oyster Bar at Clarendon in County Galway for a meal, a drink and a good old-fashioned sing-song in the cosy pub.

Princess Margaret enjoyed every moment of it. She tapped out the rhythm with great delight.

"She said it was a great night," smiled Burke, the pub owner, "and it was one, too, for the locals. They'll remember it for a long time."

Fishermen in from Galway Bay never batted an eyelid when the plush limousine drew up outside the hostelry, home of the famous Galway Oyster Festival.

Instead, they downed their pints of stout and shook the rafters of the quaint little pub with traditional Irish drinking ballads.

COFFEE BLACK

Inside the pub, Burke had prepared a meal fit for a king—or a princess. There were fresh oysters galore, but Margaret would not touch them because she said they disagreed with her. There was freshly-boiled lobster, followed by chicken washed down by Irish coffee. But the princess drank her coffee black—without the whiskey.

As the wine flowed, the dancing began and sisters Mary and Rosalyn Mayland took to the floor for a jig while Princess Margaret clapped excitedly.

Her husband, meanwhile, had slipped out to the outside bar for a quick word with some of the local fishermen.

JOINED SINGING

"They got on simply great together," Burke said. "It was a bit of a pity he had to go back to the snug so quickly."

After the jig, the music played Molly Malone and Princess Margaret joined in the singing, jazzing it up to the roars of approval from the outside bar.

Then there was Margaret's own request song, All Through the Night, and many other tunes.

Fear Pulled The Trigger

ATLANTA (UPI) — J. B. Norris Jr., a 53-year-old X-ray technician, lived in mortal fear of his wife's admirer, a former policeman with the nickname of "Two Gun" (T. R.) Reid.

Norris said the 43-year-old Reid once told him he was in love with Mrs. Norris and meant to marry her "even if it is necessary to kill you."

Norris said Reid boasted that he had his two guns and "if that is not enough, I have two brass knucks."

GOT OWN GUN

Returning home unexpectedly Tuesday, Norris found Reid and his wife lying across a bed. They were fully clothed, but both had their shoes off.

He said he was afraid Reid would kill him, so he slipped into a closet and got his .38-calibre revolver.

Norris said he walked to the foot of the bed, shouted to his wife to get out of the way, and began blazing away at Reid.

THREE WOUNDS

The former city policeman, who won the nickname "Two Gun" because he showed up to work the first day with two pistols strapped on his hips, was wounded three times.

Police said the bullets smashed Reid in the face, hand and chest.

Norris said Reid tried to rise from the bed, but he kept on firing.

DEAD AT HOSPITAL

The ex-law officer was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Reid, who held a master's degree in law, was a former assistant city attorney. At one time he was the only active policeman in Atlanta who was licensed to practise law before the U.S. Supreme Court.

One of his former colleagues, lawyer Newell Edenfield, represented Norris as he told his story in municipal court.

Las Vegas Slots Beaten

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—The "Sydney Slot Machine Syndicate" has proved once and for all that slot machines can be beaten by a "system."

The "syndicate" took this gambling mecca by storm Tuesday night with the "system" that yielded the group $200,000 in slot machine winnings last year in Australia.

At club after club the four men from the land of Waltzing Matilda were asked to leave, sometimes before hitting a single jackpot and having dropped but a few coins into the machines.

In four hours, two of them hit eight jackpots for a total of $277.50. The largest payoff was for $180.

Baptist Petition Joins in Protest

Petitioners from the congregation of Emmanuel Baptist Church have added their protests against the sale of liquor in McPherson Playhouse.

The petition, received in city hall Wednesday and signed by 74, is the eighth received since city council gave approval in principle to the sale of liquor in the theatre.

Three petitions were received on Tuesday and add to the four already on file at the office of the city clerk.

Consideration will be given the petitions at the next meeting of city council, on Monday.

Lord of the Flies Returning to City

The Alma Mater Society of the University of Victoria is sponsoring two charity showings of the British film Lord of the Flies at the Fox Cinema Sunday, Jan. 17.

All proceeds of shows at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. will go into a special fund to bring one or two African students to study at the university.

The theatre and services of the projectionist are being donated for the occasion.

Lord of the Flies, from the novel by William Golding, shows how a group of schoolboys, marooned without adult supervision on a tropical island, revert to savagery.

Shown once commercially, for one week last summer, the film drew small crowds, but has been hailed as one of the finest British movies in recent years. It is directed by Peter Brook.

Gallery Property

Painting Stolen In Vancouver

A Tom Thomson painting valued at $1,200, belonging to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria was stolen from a Vancouver Art Show four months ago, it was reported Wednesday.

The painting, an 8 1/2 by 10 1/2 inch oil titled Autumn in Algonquin Park, was reported missing from the Fine Arts Department of the University of British Columbia Sept. 16.

ART CIRCUIT

It had been loaned along with five others to the Western Canada Art Circuit for circulation among Canadian galleries.

The package containing the five paintings was opened at UBC prior to the show. The building was being remodeled at the time and many people had access to it.

RCMP at UBC report that a complete investigation has been made with negative results.

"But the investigation is continuing," an RCMP spokesman said, "we are hopeful that it will be recovered."

The gallery received the painting as a gift three years ago.

COMING OF AGE With Sally Hamilton

The more we know, the more we don't know. Another "Come-Fifty-Lately" wishes he knew more:

"I was born in the northern wilderness of British Columbia and I was 10 years old before I got to school. Altogether I had only five years of schooling, but in that time, I managed to get through grade school and one year of high school. Then I had to go to work and I was married at the age of 19. Now my family is grown up; and I feel more than ever the need to learn."

One educational program on TV. Fortunately for you, Mr. "Come-Fifty-Lately", all is not lost just because you didn't finish school so many years ago. Have you thought of returning to high school? This is being done more and more; and by people much older than you. Don't let old phantasms, and the fact that you left school before you wanted to, hold you back. The excitement of learning belongs to everyone who cares to develop the muscles of the brain.

As for radio and TV programs, there are some excellent Canadian ones devoted to the exploration of ideas. CBC Times lists many of these. (This magazine is published once a week and costs $1. Subscriptions are sent to CBC, 354 Jarvis Street, Toronto.)

Dockyard Officer Transferred

Posted to Canadian Forces Headquarters, Ottawa, is Lieut. R. G. Nightingale, assistant staff officer of information at HMC Dockyard.

Lieut. Nightingale will be attached to the advertising subsection of the directorate of recruiting.

He has been in Victoria since Aug. 31, 1964.

NEWS EDITOR

A former army public relations officer for 20 Militia Group Headquarters, Winnipeg, and a radio news editor for the CBC, he joined the navy's reserve in December, 1959, later transferred to the regular force.

He served in the directorate of naval information in Ottawa from January, 1963, until his posting to HMC Dockyard.

Lieut. Nightingale will take up his new duties Feb. 22. He was born in Edmonton in 1928.

For fresh ideas and to meet folks of like mind, look to the "Y's"—both M and W. There everything is offered from dramatics and travel to mental health—depending on local demand. Or ask about church groups.

Your public library is, of course, your prime resource. Besides having the books to study from, they know what goes on in your community. Often a library sponsors its own discussion groups.

The list of places to go for help with adult education is too long to cover here. Government departments offer literature, some free, some at nominal cost. Women's Institutes are active; so are music conservatories.

Write Sally Hamilton, in care of this newspaper, for information about correspondence courses, how to contact the Canadian Association for Adult Education, the Great Books Foundation, etc. Enclose 10¢ and a stamped, addressed envelope.

Funeral Friday For Times Man

Private funeral services will be held Friday for former Victoria Daily Times advertising director William Alfred (Pat) Patterson.

Born in Toronto, Mr. Patterson came to the Times during the First World War and remained with the paper for 35 years until his retirement in December, 1950.

Well-known in Canadian newspaper advertising circles, he was a long-time member of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association and the Western Daily Newspaper Advertising Managers' Association.

UNION CLUB

Mr. Patterson was a member of the Union Club, the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, the Masonic Order and the Scottish Rite; and was, for many years, rector's warden at St. John's Church.

He is survived by three sons, Douglas of Victoria, William and Donald of Vancouver, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in St. John's Church.

Response Wonderful To Appeal for Cards

Response to an appeal for old Christmas cards has been tremendous.

The appeal was made by Mrs. H. A. Arnold, 30 Howe Street, who each year sends the cards to missions, hospitals and orphanages in Taiwan, India and Bolivia.

INCREASE LIKELY

"The response has been wonderful," Mrs. Arnold said, "especially since the drive has been on only for a few days so far this year."

Mrs. Arnold has received more than 250 parcels by mail and expects a steady increase during the next few weeks.

Last year she sent 110,000 cards to patients in leper hospitals, children's hospitals, orphanages and schools.

PEOPLE KIND

Cost of sending the cards to patients is about 15 cents for each 100 cards.

"People have been very kind and many have left some money with the cards to assist in the postage costs," she said.

Anyone wishing to donate their old cards may leave them in a large box situated on her front porch at 30 Howe Street.

Sales Tax For City Rathie Goal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor William Rathie called Wednesday for a civic sales tax in Vancouver.

In his inaugural address to the 1965 council he said such a tax would broaden the city's tax base and provide money to finance debt-free works projects.

In a later interview he said the provincial government might be asked either to permit the city to levy its own sales tax or to earmark a portion of the present provincial sales tax for municipalities.

Leaper Wins Suit

CALGARY (CP)—University Hospital of Edmonton was ordered by an Alberta Supreme Court Justice Wednesday to pay $40,000 damages to a former patient who leaped from the fourth floor of the hospital and lived.

Mr. Justice Hugh Farthing handed down the judgment in a civil action in favor of Gerald Lepine, 28, of the Hay River.

FAILED IN DUTY

The judge ruled the hospital failed to fulfill its duty to "supply sufficient manpower to take care of the plaintiff," who had been admitted to the hospital as an epileptic.

Lepine was admitted to the hospital July 17, 1962. On July 24 he escaped and was returned by police. He tried to escape a second time but was subdued.

JUMPED OUT

Later the same day, with police, an orderly and physician in his ward, Lepine jumped through a fourth-floor window and landed on the pavement below, suffering serious injuries.

Mr. Justice Farthing said, "persons suffering from post-epileptic automatism—a seizure in which the person moves about and is sometimes dangerous—are in no way responsible for their actions."

Well Known Resident Buried Today

Mrs. George McMicken, widely known throughout the Greater Victoria area where she had lived since 1937, died in Rest Haven Hospital early Wednesday morning.

Born in Winnipeg, Cora Gillespie Patterson, she received her education there. Her first marriage to Jay Jackson took place in the Manitoba city.

ON WORLD TOUR

After the First World War while on a world tour, Mrs. McMicken met her second husband and their marriage took place in Singapore.

George McMicken was manager of his brother's phosphate mine on Christmas Island in the Far East and it was there the couple lived until Mr. McMicken's retirement in 1925.

Until Mr. McMicken's death in 1937 the family lived in Seven Oaks, Kent, England. It was at that time Mrs. McMicken decided to return to Canada.

HER HOBBIES

Later she moved to a home on the West Saanich Road and finally to the East Saanich Road.

Her son, Robert Patterson Jackson, died in 1955.

Her hobbies might be said to have been people and travel. It was her love of people that prompted her to open an antique shop several years ago in Sidney. It was a familiar scene to see Mrs. McMicken talking and laughing over antique lore with the many American tourists who dropped into her shop.

MANY JOURNEYS

Travel took her on many journeys from Sidney. She had spent several winters in Majorca and only returned from a last visit to England in late summer last year.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 11 in Holy Trinity Church in Patricia Bay with the Rev. Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch officiating.

Students Buried In Avalanche

Captain's Story

Sinking Blamed On Crew

NEW YORK (AP)—The captain of a storm-sunk freighter blamed the loss of his ship on the panicky abandonment of the vessel by its crew.

Capt. Frederick Mohle, 58, of New York, testified for a second day at a three-man coast guard hearing Wednesday into the sinking of the freighter Smith Voyager Dec. 27. The ship broke up about 700 miles from Bermuda with the loss of four lives.

"Do you think the ship could have been saved if more men had remained aboard, particularly more engineers?" Mohle was asked.

ENGINE ROOM DRY

"Yes, definitely, for the engine room had stayed dry," the skipper replied.

Mohle said he had ordered four crew members into a life boat to keep it from smashing apart against the side of the Smith Voyager. Unknown to him, he added, the other 34 crew members also piled into the life boat.

"Is it your contention that most of the crew abandoned ship?"

Couple Off To Asia

NEW YORK (CP)—A young British Columbia doctor took off Wednesday for Afghanistan, where he plans to spend at least the next two years practicing and teaching at a hospital in the country's barren south-central region.

"It's an opportunity that may come only once in a lifetime, so I grabbed it," said Dr. Rod Calverley, 28, of Quenest, B.C. With him were his wife, the former James Anthony, 25, of Penticton, B.C., and their three-month-old son, Grant Howard.

JOINS CARE

Dr. Calverley is the latest of 19 Canadian doctors and nurses who have gone to Asia to work under the auspices of the Co-operative for American Relief Everywhere, a private organization financed by contributions from Canada and the United States.

The Calverleys are due in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, Jan. 20. They will be met by another Canadian physician, Dr. John Mowbray, a specialist in internal medicine from Saskatoon, who has been in charge of CARE's medical activities in Afghanistan for the last two years.

MET AT UBC

Mrs. Calverley, a teacher, met her husband when both were students at the University of British Columbia. She has taught in North Vancouver, Fort St. John and Victoria.

A native of Dawson Creek, B.C., Dr. Calverley moved to Quenest to practice after an internship in Victoria.

Butler Rites Today

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. today in Vancouver for well-known lumberman and former Victoria resident Wayne Albert Butler.

Born in Seattle, he attended school in Victoria before joining Lemon and Gossman which later became Crowe-Gossman.

Mr. Butler then joined Youbou Lumber and later Moore-Whitington.

LUMBER BOARD

During the war years he served on the Lumber Control Board, following which he joined Alaska Pine in Vancouver.

He was in Portland on business when he died.

Mr. Butler was a member of the North Shore Shrine Club and the Rotary, Terminal City Club.

SURVIVORS

He is survived by his widow, Dorothy, and a daughter, Mrs. Lynn Brown, both of Vancouver; his mother, Mrs. Albert Mercer and a brother, Herbert Butler, both of Victoria. Another brother, Rennie, lives in Vancouver.

Services will be held in Simmons and McBride Funeral Chapel, Broadway and Maple.

Forgotten Father

Happy Birthday, John A., Wherever You Are

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Is Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, a political embarrassment to his successors nearly 100 years later?

Celebrations next Monday of the 150th anniversary of Macdonald's birth seem to be limited only to Kingston, Ont., where he had his beginnings in the political life of the country. Little enthusiasm for the event is being shown by either the federal or the provincial governments.

Prime Minister Pearson earlier accepted an invitation to attend a civic-state banquet in Kingston on Monday. But he is continuing his holiday in Florida and sending E. J. Benson, Kingston's Liberal MP and the cabinet's most junior member, to represent him. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who is a devotee of Macdonald's political legacy, plans to go to the dinner if he can the day after his return from a Christmas holiday in the West Indies.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec sent his regrets. Premier Roberts of Ontario—whose government is paying part of the tab for the banquet—will attend or be represented. Macdonald, who was born in Glasgow and whose parents emigrated to Kingston when he was five, is the first of the Fathers of Confederation. Historians now say that even with the concessions made by reform leader George Brown in 1861, no other man could have brought about agreement among the fathers to achieve Confederation.

cherry tree, Macdonald ranks in Canada with George Washington in the United States.

Yet his birthday goes by most years without any recognition. Bills to declare Jan. 11 Macdonald Day have languished on House of Commons order papers for want of a nod of approval from either Liberal or Conservative governments. There are few public monuments (Continued on Page 3)

Men Ready

Island Flood Fight Mapped

Special to the Colonist

The provincial highways department is ready to fight floods anywhere on Vancouver Island if any sudden thaw goes to work on three weeks of snow, a department official in Nanaimo said Wednesday.

The statement came as the B.C. weather office said a storm from the Gulf of Alaska will move rapidly down the B.C. coast today, bringing a mixture of rain and snow but leaving temperatures virtually unchanged.

The result will be continued daytime thaws and nighttime freezing, which highways, municipal and police officials say should mean an escape from heavy floods.

The Nanaimo official said warmer weather and heavy rains could overtax drainage structures, and warmer temperatures in the mountains could cause a heavy runoff and river flooding from Duncan north.

He said the unusually large amount of snow this winter means a sudden thaw would en-

Viet Cong Now 'Army'

War in New Phase

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. military spokesman has warned the war in South Viet Nam appears to be entering a new and dangerous phase.

He said recent battles, captured documents and broadcasts by Hanoi radio in North Viet Nam indicated the Viet Cong had launched its long-dreaded experiment in fighting bigger and longer battles than ever before. (See also Page 3.)

If true it would indicate the Viet Cong felt it had won its guerrilla war and now was strong enough to test the Vietnamese in pitched battle and attack and try to hold towns for days in what the Reds call a prelude to victory.

The American spokesman cited four battles — An Lao, Soc Trang, Ba Dua and Binh Gia — as examples of Communist willingness to stand and fight. He called the battle at Binh Gia, 40 miles south of Saigon, the biggest, longest, toughest and best-co-ordinated Communist campaign he could recall.

A Vietnamese military spokesman reported an aircraft flying over a forest 75 miles east of Saigon encountered anti-aircraft fire. Previously, the Communists used only machineguns and he said

Help Now Cries Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Prime Minister Rahman of Malaysia Wednesday called for immediate UN and Commonwealth aid against the threat of a major Indonesian offensive.

"We can't tell them in what form their aid should be given," he said. "We want them to decide and prepare for it now."

Rahman said Malaysia was concerned over continued increases in Indonesian military strength and over Indonesia's withdrawal from the UN, adding: "We think they may be preparing for something big."

Police Wounded During Manhunt

LONDON (CP)—Two policemen were wounded and a police dog shot dead Wednesday night in London's fashionable Kensington district during a fight with a jail-breaker.

Arrested was a man identified as John Campbell Marston, 22, who escaped from Lewes Jail last November.

Pact Signed

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain and the Soviet Union signed a five-year agreement Wednesday for co-operation in agricultural research—first of its kind between the two countries.

Crewmen Charge:

Weatherships 'Death Traps'

By DON GAIN

Crew members and members of their families charge that the weatherships Stonetown and St. Catharines are death traps for those who sail aboard them.

The charges came after the Stonetown returned to Victoria Monday from weather station Papa with a nine-inch crack in her forecabin head deck following a week of mountainous seas and gale-force winds.

A department of transport spokesman has termed the charges "ludicrous."

NEW ANSWERS

Colonist reporters who boarded the ship as she arrived home from her bulletted tour of duty were given few answers about damage sustained, but later reports filtered through to the paper.

Crew members and their families did not wish to be named because of the fear of losing their department of transport jobs.

They charged:

- The ships have outlived their usefulness.
- They are not seaworthy.
- They have many defects which are never repaired.
- The Stonetown has a crack at the base of the funnel.

Here are some of their remarks:

- "The sooner they are replaced the better for everyone concerned. They ought to be scrapped before there is a tragedy."
- "Crew members feel their lives are in danger."
- "These ships are death-traps. I want to get off before they go down."

- "If they were commercial ships they would never be allowed to go to sea."
- "If the Stonetown had not been able to turn around and steam south away from the storms, if it had had to sail into the weather, it would have foundered."

- "The breakwater was torn loose from the deck and water was leaking through the deck."
- "The plates around the funnel and on the galley deck of the St. Catharines had to be torn right out a few years ago because you could put a chipping hammer through them."

In answering the charges, the transport department spokesman said the ships are regularly inspected by Lloyd's surveyors and also by steamship inspectors.

"These men wouldn't let them go to sea if they weren't seaworthy," he said. "The skippers wouldn't take them to sea either if they thought they wouldn't get them back."

"As far as the ships being

Ontario Blind Fed 'Scraps'

TORONTO (CP)—Blind patients in nursing homes have been served the scraps off the plates of others — and this is but one of the "atrocities" that have taken place in Ontario nursing homes, a legislative committee was told Wednesday.

Burrell D. Morris, an official of the Associated Nursing Homes of Ontario, drew a sordid picture of padded food and drug costs, sloppy service and other practices which he referred to as "greedy fakery."

RCN Ship Joining Mixed-Navy Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—The North Atlantic alliance next month will form a multinational anti-submarine destroyer squadron in which Canada will participate, it was learned Wednesday.

Formation of the four-ship flotilla with destroyers from Canada, Britain, the United States and The Netherlands has no connection whatever with a proposed NATO seaborn nuclear strike force.

The Canadian ship joining this unit will be the destroyer Columbia, captained by Cmdr. Peter Hinton of Victoria.

The Columbia will sail for Britain in February to join the ships of the other three nations. The squadron will operate together for five months, first in European waters and later in the Western Atlantic.

The new formation will practice procedures, tactics and communications involved in anti-submarine warfare.

Moby Doll's Captors to Blame

A Whale of a Winter

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Reports from experts on Indian legend say the white man's recent capture of the late killer whale, Moby Doll, is entirely responsible for one of the worst winters to hit the province in three decades.

George Clutesi of Port Alberni, an expert on Indian legends, claims the big snow would not have hit this province if the whale had not been removed from its natural environment.

He recalled an earlier prediction by Mrs.

Maisie Hurley of Vancouver that a terrible disaster would hit the city because the killer whale was being held captive.

Mrs. Hurley's prediction was based on an old Indian tale which claims it is unlucky to keep a killer whale captive. She was a long-time expert on Indian lore, and predicted that Moby Doll would die in captivity.

Mr. Clutesi further predicted the snow would remain until March and would be followed by flood conditions.

Arizona Cell Tragedy

Local Residents Bitter Over Death of Youths

PAYSON, Ariz. (UPI)—The jail cell deaths of four teen-age boys arrested on suspicion of stealing beer has shocked this closely-knit western town and many of the 800 residents were openly bitter because of the tragedy.

Gila County sheriff's investigators said the four, all of whom lived in this picturesque community under the Mogollon Rim, died of gas asphyxiation.

Cliff Greenland, 18, Blane S. Schroeder, John Watkins and Kenneth Haight, all 16, were discovered Tuesday in the cell of the new county jail building. The boys, who had been alone in the cell since the previous night, when they were arrested on a charge of stealing beer, were lying on cots fully clothed, according to Gila County Sheriff Elton Jones, who took office only five days ago.

Jones also disclosed that a fifth boy was arrested with the other youths but was permitted to return to his parents because of his age—15.

Fire Kills Four

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Fire killed four persons in a centre city apartment building Wednesday as flames broke out on the first floor of the four-story building and burst through the roof.

Jones said all the boys admitted taking the beer, but called them decent citizens and well liked in the community.

Vernon Haight, father of Kenneth, said he was not notified about his son's death until four hours after the bodies were found.

Young Haight was descendant of Edd Haight, the guide who accompanied writer Zane Grey on his visits to the Mogollon Rim and the Payson area.

Jones in the course of questioning by reporters would not say when the four were last seen alive. But he insisted they were checked "sometime during the night," when they appeared to be all right.

Train Derailed Near Ashcroft

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three diesel units and a baggage car of a westbound Canadian National Railway trans-continental Panoram were derailed late Wednesday near Ashcroft, 140 miles northeast of its terminus.

There were no injuries among the crew and estimated 150 passengers.

Botch It Yourself

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—The man who published the Awful Spellers Dictionary says sales have been so good he's going to publish a series of Awful books.

"We have done phenomenally well with the dictionary for awful spellers," said Peter Wolfe.

"So, I've commissioned a series of Awful books designed specially for people who are bad at doing things."

The first three, to be published in March, will be called: The Awful Cook's Book; and The Awful Dressmaker's Book; and The Awful Handyman's Book.

The Awful Spellers Dictionary was designed for those who spell so badly they can't find the words in an ordinary dictionary.

The words are arranged phonetically. You look up a word by the way it sounds. If you want to spell phonemically, you look up (phonemical).

Roadwork Will Go Through

The provincial highways department still hopes to complete $180,000 worth of improvements to the snow-choked road between Alberni and Tofino, which has been closed almost a week.

A spokesman said Tuesday the department hopes to finish the improvements, which were announced earlier this winter, before the end of the fiscal year, March 31.

"We can get a lot done in a month," the official said, "and we certainly hope to get a month of reasonably good weather before then."

PORT ALBERNI—An overhaul of machinery to reduce fly ash fallout which began about six weeks ago was completed during the Christmas shutdown, officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. have announced. Following the start of the overhaul, the provincial health department announced it would investigate the fly ash problem early this year.

DUNCAN—Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. today from the First chapel for Raymond George Topliss, 67, who died Monday in hospital here. A native of England, he moved to Canada in 1908 and had lived here since 1949, working as a carpenter and cabinetmaker.

NORTH COWICHAN—The provincial government tentatively plans a plebiscite in March on possible amalgamation of Saltair and North Cowichan. Reeve Donald Morison has disclosed. Both municipal officials and Saltair representatives will meet government spokesmen before the vote is set.

PORT ALBERNI—Civic arena manager Duncan Russell says Education Minister Peterson has been invited to dedicate the new arena complex Jan. 23. The official opening will precede a minor hockey jamboree involving more than 600 players and 2,500 spectators. Mr. Russell said the two-year arena project cost about $540,000 and the arena is already booked up until March.

LADYSMITH—Last rites will be held at 2 p.m. today in First United Church for Robert Forster Davidson, 71, who died Tuesday in Ladysmith General Hospital. He came to B.C. from Newcastle, England, in 1911 on the maiden voyage of the Princess Alice by way of Cape Horn. Mr. Davidson worked for the E. & N. Railroad for 46 years, retiring as an engineer in 1958.

Visiting Minister Hurt in Collision

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Canon Richard E. N. Verburgh of Ocean Falls is in good condition in hospital at Duncan with a shoulder injury suffered in a two-car collision at the highway and Nightingale Road here Tuesday afternoon.

He was the sole passenger in a car driven by his son Christopher of Nanaimo. Police said the other driver was Donald Charles of Koksilah and the roads were icy at the time.

Alberni Valley

Jobless Total Soars Like a Skyrocket

PORT ALBERNI—Last year closed with skyrocketing unemployment in the Alberni Valley, officials of the National Employment Service Office said Wednesday.

Record snowfalls in the area were blamed for the fact there were 883 men registered for work at Dec. 31, compared to 315 at the end of November and 619 at the close of 1963.

LARGEST CATEGORY

The largest single category affected by layoffs due to bad weather was, of course, logging. The number of unemployed women declined last month to 168 from the November total of 181. Pre-Christmas work in stores and the post office accounted for the decrease.

Forty-five women and 10 men were hired for temporary work at the post office before Christmas. The figures were down slightly from 1963 due to a decline in the total volume of mail handled this year.

FIGURES GIVEN

A breakdown of unemployed men at the year-end showed 106 loggers and woodsmen out of work because of operation closed down by heavy snows. 98 construction workers, 97 truck drivers and cat operators, 31 mechanics and repairmen, and 30 protective service workers such as watchmen.

There were also approximately 120 men registered for work in the various millwork operations.

Get Job Done Now Cowichan Urged

DUNCAN—For the first time in many months there is a surplus of carpenters and other skilled tradesmen, manager Robert Robinson of the National Employment Service office here said Wednesday.

He blamed the surplus on the weather, the worst since 1951, and urged all Cowichan Valley residents to take advantage of the layoffs by having necessary home and commercial repairs, alterations and renovations completed.

Mr. Robinson said this should be done before several major projects begin in the next few weeks and a shortage of skilled tradesmen returns.

He expressed confidence that the unusually high level of employment which has prevailed in the area for the past couple of years will continue because of such items as forest industry expansion, the new hospital, the courthouse, school projects and an "unprecedented" number of new homes.

Nanaimo District

More Classes In Night School

NANAIMO—The adult education program of the Nanaimo school district, with a record high enrolment in night classes which began in September, will feature an additional 25 classes as the spring program starts this month.

A second class for automotive mechanics, a preparation course for the trade qualification exam open only to practicing mechanics, is already nearing maximum enrolment.

FOR FISHERMEN

A two-week workshop for commercial fishermen will be held in the OCF hall beginning Jan. 25 at 9 a.m. Some subjects to be discussed are navigation, weather forecasting, codlison, safety and salmon conservation.

Capt. H. L. Cadieux will conduct the morning session. Afternoon sessions will be given by scientists from biological station and by skippers.

CITIZEN BAPTISTS

A 10-week course for salesman will be given by an instructor from Victoria. A building construction course will be given twice weekly. Robert Andrews will detail basic building procedures, cutting rafters and stairs.

Adults who wish to renew or upgrade industrial first aid certificates can enrol in an industrial first aid course to be given Mondays.

Miss Pat Johnston and Jack Parker will be in charge of a series of illustrated lectures on the history of Nanaimo. The course will begin Feb. 4 and takes five evening sessions.

Parksville Budget $160,000

PARKSVILLE—A provisional budget of approximately $160,000 for this year has been received by the village council at its first meeting of 1965.

The meeting was under the supervision of commissioner E. G. Touzeau in the absence of chairman John Robertson.

FIRE CHIEF NAMED

The village officials appointed fire chief W. G. Wheeler as building, fire and licence inspector for this year and named Hott, Long and Co. as village auditors.

Other decisions were to have the village works crews carry out sewer inspections instead of appointing an inspector for the job, and to complete a water-works survey when the weather permits.

Businessmen Go to Cabinet

A 10-member delegation from Vancouver Island's Associated Chambers of Commerce will present 21 resolutions to the provincial cabinet at 11 a.m. today. Group president Sam Lane of Esquimalt will lead the delegation.

It will include Cliff Laver of Courtenay, Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni, Edward Stroyan, Dave Jones and Richard Bond of Nanaimo, Bob Wright and Walter Dodsworth of Oak Bay and Bernie Cox and Paul Frumento of Victoria.

Executive members of the association met for almost four hours in Nanaimo Wednesday to map out plans for the cabinet meeting.

One of the major resolutions urges the government to launch a crash program to push the Island Highway through to Port Hardy—about 90 miles north of the present Kelsey Bay terminus.

Another deals with curbing air and water pollution.

More Centres Confirm:

Island Building Soared in 1964

Three more Vancouver Island centres Wednesday reported the total value of their building permits for 1964—and big increases were recorded in each case. The biggest was in Duncan, where 115 permits were worth

ported a 1964 building total of $2,385,180, about one-fifth above the previous year's record of $1,980,619.

December totals in North Cowichan were $83,000 last year and $41,694 the year before.

Nanaimo's building permits jumped about 50 per cent in value. Officials said the 1964 total for 411 permits was $2,463,367 while the year before saw more permits worth less money—423 valued at $1,629,954.

Hits 'Inequity'

Island Man Renews Tax Fight

Nicoll

NANAIMO—R. E. (Doc) Nicoll, who is still fighting his 1964 assessments, said Wednesday he has received his 1965 assessments and will "in all probability" fight them, too.

What's more, the Gulf Islander fired off a telegram to Premier Bennett protesting the new assessments, then issued a press release urging all taxpayers to review the assessment rolls as he does.

His wire to the premier reads:

DEEPLY DISTURBED

"Am deeply disturbed that my analysis of current assessment rolls again presents a picture of inequity and lack of correlation. As minister of finance I know you will agree that fairness in taxation is paramount. Will gladly provide you with specific information."

Doc Nicoll's properties are 73-acre Breakwater Island, which has a 1965 assessment of $13,500, and an 8.9-acre parcel of land on Gabriola Island, which was assessed at $5,240.

He disclosed Wednesday the 1965 assessments are identical.

YEAR-LONG FIGHT

His appeals against the 1964 assessments began last February. The Nanaimo court of revision refused then and later to hear the appeals but finally reconvened in the fall, following several Supreme Court hearings.

The Nanaimo court ruled the assessments would not be changed but the figures on surrounding properties were to be investigated and possibly adjusted.

Thi. sent Mr. Nicoll back to the Supreme Court, which has required court of revision judges John Baraby, William Cochrane and Russell Inkster to appear before a sitting in Vancouver Jan. 14.

Mr. Nicoll's basic claim is that the provincial taxation department makes "discriminatory and unequal" assessments. He now claims the 1965 assessment rolls, available at the courthouse here, show "a continuing picture of unfairness and inequity."

His appeal to the public said: "Although it is quite possible that I am the only citizen in B.C. that inspects and analyzes the assessment rolls, I feel that it is vital for every taxpayer to be told that he has the legal right to do this, especially if he is disturbed with his assessment."

Duncan Appeal

Court Splits Ruling

DUNCAN — One conviction against a former Duncan taxi operator was upheld by Judge L. A. Hanna in county court Tuesday, but a second was dismissed.

Jan Roozendaal was fined $300 and his car was confiscated to the crown Nov. 18, 1963, after his conviction on charges of illegally selling liquor and using his car for the liquor sale.

Judge Hanna upheld the illegal sale charge but ordered that the car be returned to Roozendaal. He dismissed the second charge saying he felt the crown had not been able to prove the vehicle was used for the actual transaction.

The two charges were laid after an RCMP plainclothesman bought a bottle of liquor at Roozendaal's taxi office and paid for it with a marked bill.

Road Death Accidental

No Blame in Union Bay Death

COURTENAY — Prevailing road and weather conditions played a part in the Dec. 19 road death of Gordon Kennedy Wilson near Union Bay, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night.

The jury ruled the death of the young Cumberland logger was accidental and attached no blame.

Wilson was returning to his home from a logging camp on the west coast of Vancouver Island. He was travelling in a car driven by Lorne Murdoch and other passengers were Jack Murdoch and Gordon Grauman.

FLAT TIRE

The inquest, conducted by coroner Thomas Menzies, was told that the car had a flat tire just south of Union Bay on the Island Highway.

Driver Murdoch pulled the car around a curve to a straight piece of road and pulled up close to the side of the snow-bank. Crown evidence showed the plowed road surface at the spot measured 19 feet, six inches.

The driver and Mr. Wilson went to the back of the car to get the spare tire and jack. As they stood there, a second car travelling in the same direction as the Murdoch car slammed into the back of the stopped vehicle, killing Mr. Wilson.

Medical evidence was that Mr. Wilson died from severe head injuries.

Jack McKay of Fanny Bay, driver of the second car, told the inquest that, as he approached the curve, he saw a flash of light. Then he saw the car and then two people.

PULLED WHEEL

Up to the time he saw the people, said Mr. McKay, he had not realized the Murdoch car was stopped.

He said he tried to turn the wheel of his car hard over but it failed to respond, and added he did not see any taillights on the parked car.

Driver Murdoch told the jury that, from the position he and Mr. Wilson had taken at the rear of the car, the taillights could have been obscured from the vision of an approaching driver.

Mail Goes Through

Special directive was issued by post office in Vancouver Wednesday telling all rural route patrons in B.C. they must shovel snow away from mailboxes so mailmen can deliver mail without leaving car. Some Nanaimo rural routes could not be covered yesterday but Royal Williams, right, delivered on Route No. 3 after Jim McLaren of Bowen Road cleared snow from locked container. —(Agnes Flett).

Nanaimo Schedules:

Hospital Hassle Rehash

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO—The hassle over the fate of the abandoned Kennedy Street hospital will have a good airing this month at three meetings which may at last solve the problem.

Tonight, Mayor Pete Maffeo, aldermen and representatives of the hospital board will be at the Credit Union auditorium to hear public suggestions on possible future use of the building.

The original plan when the old hospital was closed about two years ago was to turn it into a chronic care centre. But officials now say this is not feasible because of recent provincial government policy changes regarding such centres.

PUBLIC QUESTIONS

District MLA Dave Stupich has arranged a meeting for Jan. 15 in the OCF Hall on Wharf Street at which civic officials and board representatives will again answer public questions.

Perhaps the most decisive meeting of all will be one scheduled for Jan. 21 by the Regional General Hospital Society, when the society will vote its approval or disapproval of the old building's demolition.

IN FAVOR

At the last society meeting held in the fall, members voted 73 per cent in favor of having the building demolished.

The proposition was placed as a simple resolution and required only a 50 per cent majority to pass. At the Jan. 21 meeting the proposition will be regarded as an extraordinary resolution and will require a 75 per cent majority in favor in order to pass.

PLANS DRAWN

Hospital administrator Gordon Frith said Wednesday the continuing care unit, approved last year by the provincial health department, may be under construction by the end of the year. Plans for the building are being drawn up.

The move of some chronic patients, presently being cared for at the Regional General Hospital, to the continuing care unit, scheduled for completion some time in 1966, may alleviate crowding problems at the three-year-old hospital.

Campbell River

Convict Gone, Not Forgotten

CAMPBELL RIVER — In all the trouble caused by the weather, the RCMP haven't forgotten about 35-year-old Donald William Boch.

Police said Wednesday they are still searching for the young inmate who escaped late Friday from the minimum-security Lakeview forestry prison camp near here.

But they added they feel he is "out of this area" now.

SIX MONTHS

Boch was serving six months for false pretences when he slipped out during the showing of a film whose title has not been disclosed. His disappearance was discovered when a head count was held after the movie ended.

Police indicated they felt there was little chance Boch had been caught in the weather and frozen to death.

CAMP CLOTHES

At last report, Boch was wearing camp clothing—a red and black plaid windbreaker, green coveralls and ankle-length rubber boots.

He is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Holiday Volume

Parksville Sets Mailing Record

PARKSVILLE—The volume of Christmas and New Year mail in the Parksville post office set an unexpected record, says postmaster H. J. Parsley.

Mr. Parsley estimated about 100,000 Christmas cards passed through the post office in addition to letters and parcels, which were also greatly increased over previous years.

Due to the increase in postage on Christmas cards it had been expected there would be a decrease in volume of mail, but instead Mr. Parsley said he estimated an increase of between four and six per cent in this class.

In spite of the heavy traffic of mail, Mr. Parsley reported a smooth operation with no backlogs and all mail received, sorted and dispatched on the same day and on time.

He commended the general public for its co-operation. There were only about 10 undeliverable cards due to incomplete or no address.

Ornamental Boughs Bend Over

Metal Firm Hit Again

The second break-in in two weeks occurred overnight Tuesday at Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. Ltd., 343 Tye Road. Some weights used on a scale were reported by the company to be missing, in addition to damage done to a billing machine. Theft and damage cost about $100.

Bottle Drive

The 5th (Oaklands) Scouts will hold a bottle drive starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the area bounded by Shelbourne and Cook, Bay Street and North Dairy Road.

Fifty Years Family Record

Two Decades on the Bench

NANAIMO—Fifty years of legal supervision of Nanaimo county by the Beaver-Potts family will end June 30 with the retirement of Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts.

On that date he will have been magistrate for 20 years and one month in the county, which extends from the Malahat to the northern end of Vancouver Island and includes some of the Gulf Islands.

His father, Charles Herbert Beaver-Potts, became county magistrate in 1915. Son Lionel succeeded him in 1945.

A successor has not yet been named by the attorney-general's department but it is expected his deputy, Eric Wink, will be named to the post.

Magistrate Beaver-Potts took the post on the retirement of his father and at the end of his own distinguished military career.

He went with Canada's first contingent to Europe in the First World War, attended Sandhurst Royal Military College, was commissioned to the British Army and in 1916 was transferred to the Royal Air Force at Iraq.

In 1929 he was sent to India and in 1932 returned to Nanaimo to practise law.

He served four years in the RCAF in the Second World War. During the first war he received a Military Cross and was mentioned in dispatches. In the second war he was made an MBE. He retired from the RCAF as flight lieutenant and acting squadron leader.

His father came to Vancouver Island from England in 1880 and practised law in Cumberland before moving to Nanaimo.

Magistrate Beaver-Potts has had a definite effect on the behavior of the youth of this county. In the early 1950s he ordered a juvenile offender to have his hair cut before he would hear the charge.

***

Since that time, every youthful offender appearing before the magistrate has been careful to be properly shorn before entering the courtroom.

Service Chiefs Inspect Centre

Forgotten Father

Happy Birthday, John A., Wherever You Are

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, a political embarrassment to his successors nearly 100 years later?

event is being shown by either the federal or the provincial governments.
Prime Minister Pearson earlier accepted an invitation to attend a civic-state banquet in Kingston on Monday. But he is continuing his holiday in Florida and sending E. J. Benson, Kingston's Liberal MP and the cabinet's most junior member, to represent him.

baker, who is a devotee of Macdonald's political legacy, plans to go to the dinner if he can the day after his return from a Christmas holiday in the West Indies.
Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec sent his regrets. Premier Robert of Ontario—whose government is paying part of the tab for the banquet—will attend or be represented.

Glasgow and whose parents emigrated to Kingston when he was five, is the first of the Fathers of Confederation. Historians now say that even with the concessions made by reform leader George Brown in 1861, no other man could have brought about agreement among the fathers to achieve Confederation.
Though not a military genius or truthful about cutting down a cherry tree, Macdonald ranks in Canada with George Washington in the United States.

Yet his birthday goes by most years without any recognition. Bills to declare Jan. 11 Macdonald Day have languished on House of Commons order papers for want of a nod of approval from either Liberal or Conservative governments.
There are few public monuments.

Island Flood Fight Mapped

Special to the Colonist

The provincial highways department is ready to fight floods anywhere on Vancouver Island if any sudden thaw goes to work on three weeks of snow, a department official in Nanaimo said Wednesday.

The statement came as the B.C. weather office said a storm from the Gulf of Alaska will move rapidly down the B.C. coast today, bringing a mixture of rain and snow but leaving temperatures virtually unchanged.

The result will be continued daytime thaws and nighttime freezing, which police, municipal and highways officials say should mean an escape from heavy floods.

DUNCAN NORTH
The Nanaimo official said warmer weather and heavy rains could overtax drainage structures, and warmer temperatures in the mountains could cause a heavy runoff and river-flooding from Duncan north.
He said the unusually large amount of snow this winter means a sudden thaw would en-

Viet Cong Now 'Army' War in New Phase

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. military spokesman has warned that the war in South Viet Nam appears to be entering a new and dangerous phase.
He said recent battles, captured documents and broadcasts by Hanoi radio in North Viet Nam indicated the Viet Cong had launched its long-dreaded experiment in fighting bigger and longer battles than ever before. (See also Page 3.)
If true it would indicate the Viet Cong felt it had won its guerrilla war and now was strong enough to test the Vietnamese in pitched battle and attack and try to hold towns for days in what the Reds call a prelude to victory.
The American spokesman cited four battles. An Lao, Soc Trang, Ba Dua and Binh Gia—as examples of Communist willingness to stand and fight. He called the battle at Binh Gia, 40 miles south of Saigon, the biggest, longest, toughest and best-co-ordinated Communist campaign he could recall.

A Vietnamese military spokesman reported an aircraft flying over a forest 75 miles east of Saigon encountered anti-aircraft fire. Previously, the Communists used only machineguns and he said.

Moby Doll's Captors to Blame

A Whale of a Winter
VANCOUVER (UPI)—Reports from experts on Indian legend say the white man's recent capture of the late killer whale, Moby Doll, is entirely responsible for one of the worst winters to hit the province in three decades.
George Clutesi of Port Alberni, an expert on Indian legends, claims the big snow would not have hit this province if the whale had not been removed from its natural environment.
He recalled an earlier prediction by Mrs.

Arizona Cell Tragedy

Town's Residents Bitter Over Death of Youths

PAYSON, Ariz. (UPI)—The jail cell deaths of four teen-age boys arrested on suspicion of stealing beer has shocked this closely-knit western town and many of the 800 residents were openly bitter because of the tragedy.
Gila County sheriff's investigators said the four, all of whom lived in this picturesque community under the Mogollon Rim, died of gas asphyxiation.
Cliff Greenland, 18, Blane S. Schroeder, John Watkins and Kenneth Haught, all 16, were discovered Tuesday in the cell of the new county jail building.
The boys, who had been alone in the cell since the previous night, when they were arrested on a charge of stealing beer, were lying on cots fully clothed, according to Gila County Sheriff Elton Jones, who took office only five days ago.
Jones also disclosed that a fifth boy was arrested with the other youths but was permitted to return to his parents because of his age—15.
Vernon Haught, father of Kenneth, said he was not notified about his son's death until four hours after the bodies were found.
Young Haught was a descendant of Edd Haught, the guide who accompanied writer Zane Grey on his visits to the Mogollon Rim and the Payson area.
Jones in the course of questioning by reporters would not say when the four were last seen alive. But he insisted they were checked "sometime during the night" when they appeared to be all right.

Help Now Cries Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Prime Minister Rahman of Malaysia Wednesday called for immediate UN and Commonwealth aid against the threat of a major Indonesian offensive.
"We can't tell them in what form their aid should be given," he said. "We want them to decide and prepare for it now."
Rahman said Malaysia was concerned over continued increases in Indonesian military strength and over Indonesia's withdrawal from the UN, adding: "We think they may be preparing for something big."

Students Rap Higher Prices

Crewmen Charge:

WEATHERSHIPS 'DEATH TRAPS'

By DON GAIN

Crew members and members of their families charge that the weatherships Stonetown and St. Catharines are death traps for those who sail aboard them.

The charges came after the Stonetown returned to Victoria Monday from weather station Papa with a nine-inch crack in her forecastle head deck following a week of mountainous seas and gale-force winds.

A department of transport spokesman has termed the charges "ludicrous."

FEW ANSWERS
Colonist reporters who boarded the ship as she arrived home from her buffeted tour of duty were given few answers about damage sustained, but later reports filtered through to the paper.

Crew members and their families did not wish to be named because of the fear of losing their department of transport jobs.

They charged:

- The ships have outlived their usefulness.
- They are not seaworthy.
- They have many defects which are never repaired.
- The Stonetown has a crack at the base of the funnel.

Here are some of their remarks:

- "The sooner they are replaced the better for everyone concerned. They ought to be scrapped before there is a tragedy."
- "Crew members feel their lives are in danger."
- "These ships are death traps. I want to get off before they go down."
- "If they were commercial ships they would never be allowed to go to sea."
- "If the Stonetown had not been able to turn around and steam south away from the storms, if it had had to sail into the weather, it would have foundered."
- "The breakwater was torn loose from the deck and water was leaking through the deck."
- "The plates around the funnel and on the galley deck of the St. Catharines had to be torn right out a few years ago because you could put a chipping hammer through them."

In answering the charges, the transport department spokesman said the ships are regularly inspected by Lloyd's surveyors and also by steamship inspectors.

"These men wouldn't let them go to sea if they weren't seaworthy," he said. "The skippers wouldn't take them to sea either if they thought they wouldn't get them back."

"As far as the ships being

Train Derailed Near Ashcroft

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three diesel units and a baggage car of a westbound Canadian National Railway trans-continental train were derailed late Wednesday near Ashcroft, 140 miles northeast of its terminus here.
There were no injuries among the crew and estimated 150 passengers.

Ontario Blind Fed 'Scraps'

TORONTO (CP)—Blind patients in nursing homes have been served the scraps off the plates of others — and this is but one of the "atrocities" that have taken place in Ontario nursing homes, a legislative committee was told Wednesday.
Burrell D. Morris, an official of the Associated Nursing Homes of Ontario, drew a sordid picture of padded food and drug costs, sloppy service and other practices which he referred to as "greedy fakery."

RCN Ship Joining Mixed-Navy Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—The North Atlantic alliance next month will form a multinational anti-submarine destroyer squadron in which Canada will participate, it was learned Wednesday.
Formation of the four-ship flotilla with destroyers from Canada, Britain, the United States and The Netherlands has no connection whatever with a proposed NATO seaborne nuclear strike force.

The Canadian ship joining this unit will be the destroyer Columbia, captained by Cmdr. Peter Hinton of Victoria.

The Columbia will sail for Britain in February to join the ships of the other three nations. The squadron will operate together for five months, first in European waters and later in the Western Atlantic.

The new formation will practice procedures, tactics and communications involved in anti-submarine warfare.

Botch It Yourself

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—The man who published the Awful Spellers Dictionary says sales have been so good he's going to publish a series of Awful books.
"We have done phenomenally well with the dictionary for awful spellers," said Peter Wolfe.
"So, I've commissioned a series of Awful books designed specially for people who are bad at doing things."

The first three, to be published in March, will be called: The Awful Cook's Book; and The Awful Dressmaker's Book; and The Awful Handyman's Book.
The Awful Spellers Dictionary was designed for those who spell so badly they can't find the words in an ordinary dictionary.
The words are arranged phonetically. You look up a word by the way it sounds. If you want to spell phenomenal, you look up (frenome-nal).
